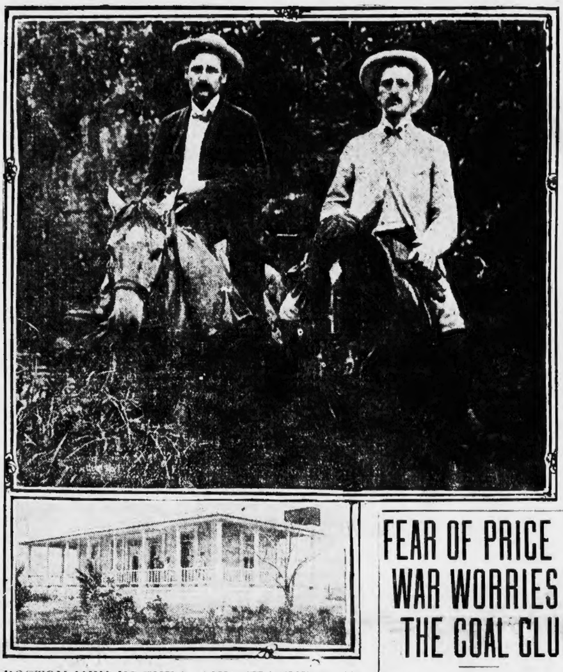
AMERICAN MACHINE GUNS MAY DECIDE THE BATTLE



BOSTON MEN IN CUBA, AND "HACIENDA."

Albert W. Kaffenburgh of the firm of I. Kaffenburgh & Sons and W. H. Bacheller are shown fording a stream which runs through El Candido, the firm plantation at Cienfuegos, Cuba.

"The Hacienda," the plantation home, is shown in the other picture.

CUBAN ARMY FACES REBELS

Government Forces Corner Guerra and It is Believed Will Be Able to Force Action---Rely on Machine Gun Battery Manned by Americans.

SPECIAL CABLE TO BOSTON AMERICAN.

HAVANA, Aug. 31.—The armies of General Avalos and General Pino Guerra now face each other in the vicinity of Guanes. A battle is expected to begin at any moment. The engagement, it is expected, will decide the fate of the rebellion.

Should Guerra win, the revolution will become far more formidable, because it will encourage the rebels and their armies will be enlarged by many recruits.

Avalos, with 1,000 cavalry, mounted infantry, rural guards and recruits, marched yesterday from the village of Sabalo to confront the enemy, and the opposing armies are now close to each other.

Major Clew's machine gun corps, composed largely of Americans, yesterday tried their new weapons and went through the new drill. They go to the front to-day.

The only fight of consequence yesterday was a three-hours' conflict between 150 rural guards and volunteers and an insurgent band estimated to number 300, near Campo Florido, twenty miles east of Havana, in which the former routed the insurgents, who scattered and disappeared, leaving fifteen dead and three prisoners.

Reports received from Manicaragua, in the tobacco district of Santa Clara province, show that the people there are fleeing from the cities on account of the growth of the insurgent forces.

At first the insurgents did not interfere with American property, but later all animals were taken from the plantations of Kaffenburgh & Sons of Boston and the Manicaragua Tobacco Company of Boston.

The Constancia Sugar Company, an American corporation, having a plantation near Cienfuegos, has filed a claim against the government for damages for livestock taken and property injured. The State Department has conferred with Consul-General Steinhart regarding the matter.

'HOWDY, JOSIAH!' SAYS MORAN. 'U UM'-QUINCY

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—When Bryan was escorted to the broad staircase of the Victoria Hotel and held for a speech Josiah Quincy, chairman of the Massachusetts State Democratic machine, was on the tail end of the crowd, craning his neck, trying to get a peek at him. Observing him, one of the Massachusetts delegation remarked:

"Quincy, evidently, can't see Bryan very well."

"That's nothing new for Quincy," said another. "He had a harder time seeing him in 1896 and 1900."

One of the first to greet the machine chairman was the man who has caused him all his discomfiture, John B. Moran. Gripping the Quincy hand, he smilingly said: "Why, Josiah, how do you do?"

And Quincy said: "U'um."

The two talked together for ten minutes, and both had the nerve to say they did not talk politics. Moran just asked Quincy if he had reached the end of his rope yet, and Quincy asked him why he persisted in seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor. Later Moran said he was afraid Quincy would have to indorse him after all. Quincy, when asked who the latest candidate of the machine to oppose Moran was, replied:

"Don't know, haven't heard of any new candidates lately."

Ready to Be Shown.

The boom for ex-Mayor John H. H. McNamee, which started in a joke, was given a little tout last night. McNamee admitted that a certain machine leader had taken him to dinner and had just started to talk about the boom to him when several "at large" politicians joined them, and the talk was all off.

Asked if it had not been seriously proposed to him that he should make the fight against Moran, and if he had not been promised financial support, McNamee said: "Well, it has not been put up to me yet, but I expect it will be. In fact, I feel sure it will be. And there is a great deal to be said on both sides of the proposition. I am not disposed to be a candidate, and strong arguments will have to be given to me before I will be."

"Then you are receptive?" he was asked.

"Well, I can't tell how strong a case they make out."

One of the prettiest pictures was Moran and ex-Congressman John R. Thayer, arm in arm, on Broadway. "I think I've got Thayer annexed to my candidacy," remarked Moran, when asked what they had been talking about.

"Why not make it a Moran and Thayer ticket?" said a man from Boston.

"Oh, I'll leave that to Thayer. I am not naming the man for second place," said Moran.

"No, don't do that," said M. P. Curran, "for if you do Thayer will twist around and make it Thayer and Moran, breaking up the game, as he did for Whitney and Sullivan."

"That's right; I never thought of that," remarked Moran. "I won't let John read me out of the party in that way."

Talked With Bryan.

Moran had a long talk with Bryan, and said he was delighted with the interview. Gaston spent but a few minutes with Bryan. Quincy saw Bryan to speak to twice last night, and intends to see him again if he can. Owing to an oversight on the part of the reception committee Mayor Fitzgerald rode in the seventh hack in the parade. Colonel Drinkwater rode in the second hack and saw Bryan whenever he pleased.

Congressman Keliher, Congressman McNary, W. T. A. Fitzgerald, ex-Congressman Joseph H. O'Neil, ex-Mayor John W. Coughlin of Fall River, Mayor Casey of Lowell, ex-Mayor Hearne of Taunton, State Committeeman Daniel W. Doherty of Westfield, Colonel Roger Donohue of Holyoke and Editor John J. Merrigan, the "people's candidate" for Congress in South Boston, were centres of political gatherings at Broadway hotels last night. Editor Merrigan has been voted the best dressed man in the Massachusetts delegation.

George Fred Williams had a heart to heart talk with Bryan soon after his arrival, and last night was with him in conference with national leaders.

"Looks Like Moran," Says Thayer.

Late last night ex-Congressman John R. Thayer of Worcester, Mass., said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter: "It certainly looks like John B. Moran will be the candidate of the Democratic party for Governor of Massachusetts. I don't see how anybody can stop him."

When he spoke he was looking directly at ex-Mayor J. H. H. McNamee of Cambridge, the latest "feeler" of the State machine, who stood less than ten feet away from him.

"Six weeks ago," continued Mr. Thayer, "I firmly believed Moran could be beaten at the primaries. Now I don't see how it is possible. When Henry M. Whitney was trotted out, I could see the sentiment turn. I have the greatest respect for Mr. Whitney, but I don't think he would have been a good candidate for Governor. I acted in good faith and with the friendliest feeling for him when I suggested that he go for the second place. His so-called record as a friend of trusts and his alleged use of lobbyists at the Legislature—stories I take no stock in—have been given damaging circulation, in my opinion. Therefore I proposed the Sullivan and Whitney ticket, having fully considered the great influence the opposition of the BOSTON AMERICAN would have had.

"I thought I was acting as a good friend of Mr. Whitney, but it seems others thought otherwise. Well, I will suggest no more tickets. But it looks bad to me. If Moran does not get a big vote he will blame the 'sorehead Democrats' and run again, which means two years of strife and setback. If we can only get together we can defeat Governor Guild."

FEAR OF PRICE WAR WORRIES THE COAL CLUB

Withdrawal of Metropolitan Company Puts Other Dealers at Wits' End.

Members of the "Coal Club of Boston" are to-day trying to figure out just what is in the future for that organization without the Metropolitan Coal Company in its roll. Whether it is to be "Hamlet with Hamlet left out" or something or the other akin to that, the dinner and "social" discussion at Shirley Point Yacht Club at Winthrop yesterday may have disclosed, for certainly the club members were not entirely jubilant when the feast was over.

One of the members, who essayed to act as spokesman for the others, declared that there would be no change in coal prices unless "outsiders cause trouble," and by outsiders he admitted that he meant the Metropolitan.

It is believed by the members of the Coal Club of Boston that the Metropolitan, whose letter of withdrawal was read yesterday, was acting only under orders from "above," wherever that is. The letter merely stated that it was not thought that any useful purpose was served by remaining in the organization.

That interest in the Coal Club is on the wane was admitted. It has developed since the investigations of trusts has become so active. The spokesman for the club admitted that many of its former members had dropped out, frightened, he thought.

What the Metropolitan may mean by its move is what is worrying those who remain. "Things will probably go on just as they have been," said this dealer to the reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN. "There is no doubt that the Metropolitan has tried to cut under for big contracts, but these attempts have all been met.

Prejudice Against "Trust."

"Certain consumers coming to recognize the Metropolitan company as the 'coal trust,' went elsewhere with their trade. It is a little unjust. The sentiment was fostered by smaller dealers. Perhaps that was the reason for the withdrawal of the Metropolitan. I wouldn't be surprised if more withdrawals followed. Even now there is a large number of dealers who do not attend the meetings."

HOLLAND IS AFTER OLD BOSTON STEAMER

The Dominion-Atlantic line steamer Prince Edward came into port to-day after an absence of seven years. The Prince Edward was the first steamer to ply between Yarmouth and Boston on this line and made her maiden voyage nine years ago. She was in commission two years, but for the past four years she has been out of commission. Negotiations are now in progress to sell her to a Holland company for service on the North Sea.

Democratic Leader Guest of New England.

BRYAN IN NEW HAVEN

Arrives in Connecticut City for Big Reception Planned in His Honor.

Lieutenant-Governor and Prominent Democrats Join in Demonstration.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Aug. 31.—William Jennings Bryan, accompanied by his escort of Democratic leaders, arrived here from New York soon after noon.

He was met at the Union Station by Mayor Studley, Lieutenant-Governor Woodruff, Acting Governor of Connecticut, and William Harris, chairman of the local reception committee.

The party will proceed to the green about 1:30 o'clock, where addresses will be made by Mr. Bryan, George Fred Williams and Dr. Garvin.

At Stamford Mr. Bryan was greeted by a big crowd.

"I have only a moment, ladies and gentlemen, and, of course, that is not sufficient to enter into the discussion of any serious questions, but I will come again," was the extent of his remarks in Stamford.

The train, due there at 10:54, was ten minutes late.

WARM GREETING FOR BRYAN IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Aug. 31.—"Bryan Day" in New Haven opened with bright sunshine and moderate temperature conductive to the comfort of the large crowd which had assembled.

The welcome here was of a two-fold nature. The returning traveler, who is a familiar figure in this city, was to be welcomed by the city and State and the sister States of Yankeedom, first as a private citizen to whom honor is due, and, secondly, was to be greeted and conferred with by leaders of the Democratic faith in New England.

Then follows the free-for-all greeting on the historic New Haven green, where during his first campaign Bryan undertook to speak and found himself in "enemy's country" when a horde of Yale students so disturbed his speaking that he lectured them. There were no Yale men here to-day, but it is safe to say that had they been here they would gladly have joined with the thousands of admirers in doing honor to the distinguished visitor.

MAYOR TO-DAY NAMES LIGHT ARBITRATOR

Representative of City in Dealing With the Edison Illuminating People.

Mayor Fitzgerald announced to-day upon his arrival at City Hall from New York that he would name to-day the arbitrator on behalf of the city to arbitrate the street lighting contract between the city of Boston and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, assignee of the Boston Electric Light Company. Who this arbitrator would be the Mayor was not prepared to state this morning.

President Charles L. Edgar informed a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day that he had already named the arbitrator in behalf of his company, choosing the same man who acted for the company in 1904, when the contract was previously arbitrated, Herbert A. Wagner of New York City, a former employe of the Edison company of St. Louis.

Under the terms of the contract the Mayor and the company must each appoint one arbitrator within thirty days after the Mayor has notified the company that he desires to have the contract arbitrated. The expiration of this time would be September 4. These two arbitrators shall, according to the contract, choose a third disinterested arbitrator. In the arbitration of 1904 this third person was Professor Arthur E. Kennelly of Harvard University, former Mayor Nathan Matthews, Jr., acting for the city. These arbitrators reported that the cost of manufacturing and distributing lights was greater than the price paid by the city and therefore there was no reduction.

Former Mayor Matthews is now in Europe, and whether he were or not the Mayor would probably not appoint him again in view of the general dissatisfaction expressed with the report of the 1904 arbitrators and in the light of recent conclusive developments that the price of $124 per light paid by the city is far in excess of what the city should justly pay.

HIPPLE BACKED SELECT SCHOOL RUN BY WOMAN

Receiver Says That Dead Head of Trust Company Was An Embezzler.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—Examination of the securities held by the defunct Real Estate Trust Company has disclosed the fact that the late President Frank H. Hipple, who, Coroner King now declares, committed suicide, was an embezzler.

It has just been known that Hipple was one of the incorporators of Miss Wright's select school for ladies at Bryn Mawr, the suburb in which Hipple had his summer residence. The other incorporators were his son and Miss Wright. The latter, five years ago, began teaching school at Bryn Mawr, and last year purchased a large stone building at a cost of $50,000, and established here a select school. Miss Wright says that Hipple visited the institution two or three times a week, and his last visit was made on the day before he shot himself.

The greatest interest to-day in the failure centres in the opening of the strong box of the suicide President Hipple, which is in the vaults of the company.

It is believed by many that the box contains the secret of what Hipple did with the money that he is known to have taken from the company. It was said that the box would be opened to-day in the presence of Receiver Earle and F. Wharton Hipple, executor of the will, and his attorney.

ARTS MUSEUM TO BE OPEN LABOR DAY

The director of the Museum of Fine Arts makes the announcement to-day that the museum will be open on Labor Day from 9 until 5 o'clock. Admission will be free.

NEVADA DEMOCRATS MEET.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 31.—Governor John Sparks was yesterday renominated by acclamation by the Democratic State convention.

CUBAN REBELS CAPTURE SHIP LOAD OF ARMS?

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Officials of the Ward line in New York were seized with apprehension to-day over the possibility that the steamer Seguranca, which left yesterday laden with a great quantity of arms, machine guns and ammunition for the Cuban Government might be intercepted and captured by the rebels.

News was received to-day that the insurgents, shifting their centre of operations to the Cuban coast from the interior, had surrounded and captured the steamer Collado, making off with the cargo of ammunition she carried.

It was this report which aroused the fears of the Ward Line officers. It was believed that a number of filibusterers, some of them from several of the more obscure ports on the Gulf of Mexico, have joined with the insurgents and are directing their attention to the capture of arms and ammunition on the way to the Cuban government from the United States.

Although no record of the steamer Collado is contained in the marine register, it was thought in New York to-day that she may be the steamer Callao, plying to Cuban ports. If so, the insurgents have made a most valuable capture.

THINK BURGESS HAS SWUM CHANNEL

LONDON, Aug. 31.—T. W. Burgess made another attempt yesterday to swim the English Channel, and an unverified report reached Dover that Burgess had landed near Calais after swimming seventeen hours.

ICE $1.00 PER 100 IN FALL RIVER NOW

FALL RIVER, Aug. 31.—The local ice companies have made another advance in rates, the price to householders, beginning to-morrow, being $1.00 per hundred pounds.

2:30 p. m.—Mass meeting on the New Haven Green. Speeches by George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, ex-Congressman Lentz of Ohio, J. W. Tomlinson of Alabama and probably others, followed by an address by Mr. Bryan at 3:30 o'clock.

5 p. m.—Departure of Mr. Bryan for Bridgeport with farewell demonstration at station.

"Railroads Must Be Owned by the Public."—Bryan

"I HAVE already reached the conclusion that railroads partake so much of the nature of a monopoly that they must ultimately become public property and be managed by public officials in the interest of the whole community, in accordance with the well-defined theory that public ownership is necessary where competition is impossible.

"I do not know that the country is ready for this change, I do not know that a majority of my own party favor it, but I believe that an increasing number of the members of all parties see in public ownership the sure remedy for discrimination between persons and places, and for the extortionate rates for the carrying of freight and passengers."—Extract from the Madison Square Garden speech of William Jennings Bryan.

HALF HOUR LATE IN LEAVING NEW YORK

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—William Jennings Bryan left this city at 10 o'clock to-day on the Bay State express of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for New Haven.

A big crowd of enthusiasts who stormed the Hotel Victoria during the early morning hour and insisted on shaking hands with the Nebraskan made necessary a change in arrangements at the last minute.

It had been planned to have Mr. Bryan take the 9:30 o'clock train, but the crowd would not let him go, and headed by cheering "Home Folks" they insisted on personal attention. Mr. Bryan good-naturedly granted their wish and held an informal reception in the corridors of the hotel for upward of an hour.

When he was finally able to break away from the crowd and enter the barouche which had been provided for him, he looked very much as he did after last night's meeting. He was perspiring freely and his collar was wilted. But he grinned and bore it.

Mr. Bryan declared that, after last night's meeting, at which 15,000 people in Madison Square Garden cheered him until they were hoarse, he "should never again regard New York as 'the enemy's country.'"

Hailed as "First Citizen."

Mr. Bryan bore his honors modestly. Hailed by Mayor Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, as "The first citizen, if not yet the first official of the land," he smiled and bowed his acknowledgement; and when later he was presented as "another Jefferson and a Democratic Lincoln" Mr. Bryan waited for the applause to cease.

When in the course of his speech he declared in favor of government ownership of the railroads, and amid the cheering that followed there were cries of "Hearst, Hearst" all over the hall, he paused and smiled in recognition of the tribute to the Congressman.

Ovation for Hearst.

W. R. Hearst arrived while Chairman Tom L. Johnson was addressing the meeting. He passed with Mrs. Hearst to his box on the [illegible] side of the garden. A ringing che[illegible] [illegible]wed the recognition, and the next instant the entire audience arose, and, waving flags and hats, gave Mr. Hearst a hearty reception, which lasted two minutes.

The [illegible] ended with Mr. Bryan's speech. With the disappearance of Mr. Bryan a rush was made for the Hearst box, and from a th[ousand] throats came demands for a speech. Mr. Hearst smiled and shook his head. Many of those present insisted on shaking hands.

Mr. Hearst finally escaped amid cheers, and the big demonstration came to an end.

After briefly addressing the overflow meeting outside, Mr. Bryan and his wife and daughter were hurried in an automobile to the Hotel Victoria.

The Nebraskan repeated his declaration in favor of the independence of the Filipinos, and specifically denounced the use of the United States navy as a private debt collecting agency. He appealed for peace, and one of the most heartily applauded phrases of his speech was his proud boast that the sun never sets on American philanthropy.

He demanded the regulation of the trusts, and in a final appeal to Democrats avowed his belief in the government ownership of railroads as one of the most pressing problems before the nation to-day.

Mr. Bryan spoke for about two hours. He was in fine voice, and his manner throughout was characterized by great earnestness and sincerity.

When Chairman Harry Walker called the meeting to order at 8:01 o'clock, in a short speech he introduced Governor Folk of Missouri, who, on his standing up, received an ovation.

Renewed Cheering.

When Governor Folk secured silence he asked the audience to be as quiet as possible, otherwise no one of the speakers, not even Mr. Bryan himself, could be heard. His address called forth renewed cheering.

The crowd, which had been so free in its cheering before, now began again. The men shouted, jumped on seats, and threw their hats into the air. The women waved their handkerchiefs and cheered. Chairman Johnson secured comparative quiet and introduced Augustus Thomas. Mr. Thomas was cheered for several minutes after he had concluded, and bowed many times in acknowledgment.

Chairman Johnson then arose to introduce Mr. Bryan.

William R. Hearst remained in the garden until after Mr. Bryan had finished speaking. A crowd of about 2,000 men had gathered around Mr. Hearst's box and cheered vociferously, keeping up the demonstration until, with Mrs. Hearst, he started to leave the garden.

Hearst and Bryan Meet.

Mr. Hearst left the garden by the Twenty-sixth street entrance leading from the main floor. Then the crowd closed in on him and Mrs. Hearst and the police forced it back with difficulty. It was some minutes before Mr. and Mrs. Hearst could get to Twenty-sixth street and Madison avenue, a way being cleared by Sergeant Cornelius J. Casey with forty policemen from the Thirty-fourth, Twenty-second and Twelfth police precincts. Mrs. Hearst did not seem to be frightened by the demonstration.

At the northeast corner of Twenty-sixth street and Madison avenue Mr. and Mrs. Hearst took a cab and drove directly to the Hotel Victoria, Mr. Bryan's carriage getting there just after them. There Mr. Hearst was met by Mr. Bryan, who asked him up to his rooms, where Mr. Hearst remained with Mr. Bryan for sometime.

BRYAN DID NOT USE PRIVATE CAR OF PRES. MELLEN

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Aug. 31.—William J. Bryan sent back empty President Mellen's private car which was placed at his disposal in New York.

Main Points in Bryan's Speech At Madison Square Garden

OUR nation has lost prestige rather than gained it, by our experiment in colonization.

I return more convinced than before of the importance of a change in the method of electing United States senators.

If corporations were required to take out Federal licenses the Federal Government could then issue the licenses upon terms and conditions which would protect the public.

The tariff question is very closely allied to the trust question and the reduction of the tariff furnishes an easy means of limiting the extortion which the trusts can practice.

Railroads partake so much of the nature of a monopoly that they must ultimately become public property, and be managed by public officials in the interests of the whole community.

The unlooked-for and unprecedented increase in the production of gold brought a victory to both the advocates of gold and the advocates of bimetallism.

The struggle for an eight-hour day is an international struggle, and it is sure to be settled in favor of the workingman's contention.

The income tax, which some in our country have denounced as a socialistic attack on wealth, has, I am pleased to report, the indorsement of the most conservative countries in the Old World.

The great corporations do not contribute their money to any party except for immunity expressly promised or clearly implied.

MORAN CLUB IS OUT FOR HOURIN FOR SENATE

Candidate Claims to Be Original Supporter of District Attorney.

The John B. Moran Club of Ward 22 has indorsed Jeremiah J. Hourin for the Senate. Mr. Hourin declares he was the first man in Ward 22 to declare for John B. Moran as the gubernatorial candidate. He says that notwithstanding rumors to the contrary he is in the field to win, and will fight to the finish.

At a meeting of the Moran Club last night he accused the Democrats of the ward of going to the political graveyard and digging up candidates to oppose him. He stands ready to debate with any other candidate in the Seventh Senatorial District. He offers his record as a right to his election.

In District Thirty-one Years.

He has been a resident of the district for thirty-one years, and he thinks that his services to the party should be considered, besides the fact that he has always been a friend of the working man. His platform, as stated by him, is as follows:

Public ownership of public utilities.

Two and one-quarter dollars a day for laborers on all public work.

A bill to prevent women and minors from working more than eight hours a day in mercantile establishments.

That representatives of labor should be allowed to hold peaceful conversation with applicants for positions during strikes.

Against Injunction Court.

That suits and hearings on writs of injunctions against labor unions be heard and tried by juries and not by judges alone, who probably owe their appointment to some corporation.

That members of the Legislature and Senate should, if found guilty of bribery, be imprisoned.

STRIKING TYPOS TO LEAD 20,000 WAGE-EARNERS

Forty-two Bands to Join Marching Host on Labor's Holiday.

Forty-two bands will furnish music for the 20,000 organized wage-earners who are to march in the Labor Day parade in commemoration of the twentieth anniversary of the establishment of labor's holiday.

In accordance with a custom of giving organizations with strikes on, the right of line, Boston Typographical Union, No. 13, which has about one hundred and fifty men on strike for an eight-hour day, will lead the parade. Positions were drawn last night by the unions that are to parade in the Central Labor Union Division, Building Trades section of the C. L. U. division and Knights of Labor Assembly, No. 30, K. of L., original, division.

Central Labor Division.

The unions in the Central Labor Union division will march in the following order: Typographical Union No. 13, Freight Handlers' Union, Bartenders' Union No. 77, Lamplighters' Union, Electrical Workers' Union No. 104, Coopers' Union No. 58, Teamsters' Unions, Barbers' Union No. 182, Hatters' Unions, Brewery Workers' Union, Stereotypers' Union, Paving Department Employes' Union, Carriage and Wagon Workers' Union, Bookbinders' Union, followed by several other unions which did not draw for positions.

There will also be three floats, containing women members of Cigar Factory Strippers' Union, Laundry Workers' Union and Overall Workers' Union.

Building Trades Section.

The drawing for positions in the Building Trades Section division resulted as follows: Bricklayers' Union No. 3, Carpenters' Union No. 33, Electrical Worgers' Union No. 103, Hoisting and Portable Engineers' Union No. 4, Building Laborers' Union, Sheet Metal Workers' Union No. 17, Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' Union, Elevator Constructors' Union, to be followed by several other unions which did not draw for positions.

Knights of Labor.

Master Workman Michael O'Meara, who is marshal of the Knights of Labor division, announces the following as the formation of the division: Division marshal and staff, Boston & Maine Freight Handlers' Assembly No. 5,572; Boston & Maine Freight Clerks' Assembly No. 1,793; Trans-Atlantic Steamship Clerk's Assembly No. 1,048; Railroad Employers' Assembly No. 1,741; Roundhouse Employes' Assembly No. 1,063, Coastwise Longshoremen's Assembly No. 1,062; New York, New Haven & Hartford Freight Handlers' Assembly No. 628; O'Connell Assembly No. 7,174 of Longshoremen; Eureka Assembly No. 9,623 of Longshoremen. Many other assemblies are expected to turn out, making between 3,000 and 5,000 men in the division.

Marshal O'Meara's Staff.

Marshal O'Meara has named the following as his staff: Chief of staff, John R. Dalton, Coastwise Longshoremen's Assembly, No. 1,062; aide-de-camp, John M. Harrington, Boston & Maine Freight Handlers' Assembly, No. 5,572; aids, Timothy Sullivan of O'Connell Assembly, No. 7,174; Michael Barry, Noddle Island Assembly, No. 5,789; Patrick Dooley, N. Y., N. H. & H. Freight Handlers' Union, No. 628; Lawrence Hennessey, Assembly No. 1,648; Timothy O'Brien, Assembly No. 1,741; Lawrence Coleman, L. A. No. 1,063; Andrew Duncliffe, L. A. No. 9,623; Edward Doherty, L. A. No. 1,793; Alexander Ryan, L. A. No. 5,572.

NOTHING IN THE M'NAMEE TALK, SAYS MAYOR

Mr. Fitzgerald Doesn't Think Cambridge Man Wants to Be a Candidate.

"There's nothing to this McNamee business in my opinion," said Mayor John F. Fitzgerald to-day upon his return from the Bryan reception in New York. Mayor Fitzgerald left New York on the midnight train. Former Mayor McNamee was with him.

Mayor Fitzgerald said that they discussed State politics but little on the way over, their talk chiefly concerning the magnificent address made by Bryan. Asked concerning the alleged candidacy of McNamee, he made the reply quoted above, adding:

"From what conversation I had with Mayor McNamee regarding the situation I do not believe he wants to be a candidate."

WAGE EARNERS TO ORGANIZE IN DEDHAM

DEDHAM, Aug. 31.—A Wage Earners' Club will be organized to-night, when citizens interested in the movement meet in Carpenters' Hall, Memorial square. James H. Donnelly of Philadelphia, State organizer of the Tapestry Carpet Weavers' Union No. 529, Dennis D. Driscoll, State secretary of the American Federation of Labor and James F. Aldrich of Dedham, will speak.

TRIES AGAIN TO GET QUORUM OF LIGHT PROBERS

Chairman Francis R. Bangs of the joint special committee of the City Council alleged to be investigating municipal lighting to-day sent out a call for a meeting of the committee next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The joke committee becomes a thing of memory after September 29, and must get some kind of a report together to present to the meeting of the Board of Aldermen September 17.

So short is the time the committee will probably seek no additional light on the light question and will not even try to ascertain what members of the committee drank "fizz" at the Boston Tavern and charged it to the city of Boston.

Minority Report.

What little testimony the committee has gathered is already in print and a copy of it in the possession of each member.

Alderman Linehan, Councilman McCullough and, it is said, probably two others of the committee, will sign a minority report, favoring municipal ownership. Alderman Linehan said to-day:

"What little the committee has learned has been favorable to municipal ownership. It certainly has learned nothing against it. Stacked as it was against the proposition the committee has accomplished about what was expected of it."

In favor of municipal ownership, besides several labor leaders, the committee has heard Professor Frank Parsons and L. E. W. Kimball, an electrical expert, and member of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103. It has also heard President James L. Richards of the Consolidated Gas Company and Everett W. Burdett, general counsel for the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, defend the companies which give them their jobs.

Quorum Out of Question.

A motion by Alderman Frank J. Linehan that the committee employ John Campbell, president of the Electrical Audit Company, as an expert for ten days at $75 a day, to give the committee technical information on the cost of generating and distributing electricity, was shelved by the committee in July and since then Chairman Bangs has not been able to obtain a quorum for a meeting.

AT 91 HE BUILDS BOARD WALK AT HOME

Charles D. Litchfield celebrated his ninety-first birthday yesterday at his home on Longfellow street, Dorchester, surrounded by his children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, relatives and friends. Mr. Litchfield is the oldest living descendant of Lawrence Litchfield, who settled in Scituate in 1636. He is in the best of health, and last week finished laying a board walk in front of his home.

BOY ESCAPES JAIL FILLED WITH POLICE

LAWRENCE, Aug. 31.—John Morris, a 14-year-old boy, arrested charged with a burglary committed at the mill of the John Barlow company, to accomplish which he swam the Spicket river, evaded a watchman and swam back again with his booty, escaped from the station house yesterday by squeezing himself through an aperture six by eight inches in diameter and then through the transom of a door, incidentally dodging the whole station house force of policemen.

Twice young Morris got out of his cell. The first time he was found wandering about the corridors of the station house, evidently having lost his bearings. He was thrust again into his cell, which the puzzled policeman discovered to be locked. While the police were talking the matter over and wondering how the boy got out of the cell he made his second and successful attempt.

4 LOST, SHIP PICKS UP 11 MEN IN FOG

Captain of Fishing Craft Fears Quartet of Hub Men Perished.

Somewhere out on George's Banks, drifting about in open dories, and with no food or water, are four men slowly starving unless death itself has put an end to their sufferings.

When the fishing schooner Balbina T. Domingoes came into T Wharf to-day her captain, Manuel Domingoes, reported that on Sunday and Monday the thickest fog that was ever known completely enveloped the sea at George's Banks. All of the crew of the Domingoes were lost in the fog on Sunday, but finally found their way back to the vessel.

On Monday the men went out again and were instructed to remain within hailing distance of the vessel. Four of the men were lost, however, and although the Domingoes cruised about for thirty-six hours they were not found. The captain fears they have perished. The men are George Folks, Manuel Mitchell, Manuel Rose and Frank Rose, all of Boston.

While looking for her own men, the Domingoes came across eleven other lost fishermen and took them on board, bringing them in to-day. They were all members of the fishing vessel Manuel F. Silva.

BURLARS GET $500 CASH, $800 STAMPS

$5,200,000,000 CONTROLLED BY ROCKEFELLER

Fusion Candidate for Governor in Pennsylvania Itemizes Money King's Interests.

CARLISLE, Pa., Aug. 31.—Forty thousand Pennsylvanians attended the Williams Grove Grangers picnic yesterday, attracted mainly by the presence of Lewis Emery, Jr., nominee of the Democratic and Lincoln Republican parties for the governorship of Pennsylvania, who delivered the opening address of his campaign.

Mr. Emery said he would tell his audience what the world knew not, and that was that John D. Rockefeller controlled corporations which have a total capitalization of over $5,200,000,000. He itemized various interests of Rockefeller's in the following classes of co-operations, with the following capitalizations: Insurance companies, $1,400,000,000; railroads, $2,500,000,000; industrial, $1,800,000,000; traction and transportation, $160,000,000; gas, electric light and power, $111,000,000; mining companies, $135,000,000; banks and trust companies, $180,000,000; telegraph and telephone, $180,000,000; navigation, $41,000,000; safe deposits, $800,000.

Mr. Emery declared he is selling better American oil in Germany to-day at eight cents per gallon, at a profit, than the Standard Oil Company is selling in America for twelve cents per gallon.

AWFUL PSORIASIS 35 YEARS

Terrible Scaly Humor in Patches All Over the Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Itching Unbearable—Cured by Cuticura in Thirty Days at Cost of $4.75.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA

"I was afflicted with psoriasis for thirty-five years. It was in patches all over my body. I used three cakes of Soap, six boxes Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. I bathed with the Soap, applied the Ointment once a day, and took the Resolvent as directed. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think permanently, as it was about five years ago.

"The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the center a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound flesh. In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of a white silvery appearance and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the flesh would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance would ooze out. That scaly crust would form again in twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in spots all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long without removing by bath or otherwise, the skin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense itching, worse at nights after getting warm in bed, or blood warm by exercise, when it would be almost unbearable.

"To sum it all up, I would not go through such another ordeal of affliction for thirty-five years for the State of Kansas. (signed) W. M. Chidester, Hutchinson, Kan., April 20, 1905."

Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. Mailed Free, "How to Cure Torturing Humors."

There is
No Good Reason
Against Good Insurance

Nor any substitute for it. Wherever failure to live means financial loss, there is call for Insurance. Is your life of financial value to another—your family, partners or business? If so, Life Insurance deserves your attention, and deserves it now. Your forethought will be better than their afterthought. ¶ When it comes to the best kind of Life Insurance, men do not all think alike. There is no desirable kind that cannot be obtained from THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. This is the oldest active Life Insurance Company in America, and the largest and staunchest in the world. It is a Mutual Company. It has no stockholders. Its assets belong to its policy-holders. It has paid them dividends continuously for fifty-six years. Taking its history through,

The Mutual Life Insurance Company

has done as well for its policy-holders as any company. It should have done better, as has recently been shown. Under the present management all policy-holders may expect unusually favorable results. This is made reasonable by the facts that it is a strictly Mutual Company, operated under New York laws, which are now the best in the world; that its great volume of business means smaller share of expense on each policy, and that the new methods and economies, which are now a part of its constitution, will save immense sums which must go to the policy-holders, as the only proper place. ¶ Mr. Charles E. Hughes, who became famous by conducting the investigation of the Legislative Committee, and who speaks with authority, has recently said: "We have had great companies exposed to close and unsparing analysis, only to find that their solidity was as the rock of Gibraltar. I would rather take insurance in a New York company compelled to transact business under these restrictions, than in any company not so restricted, and I believe that will be the sentiment of the people of these United States."

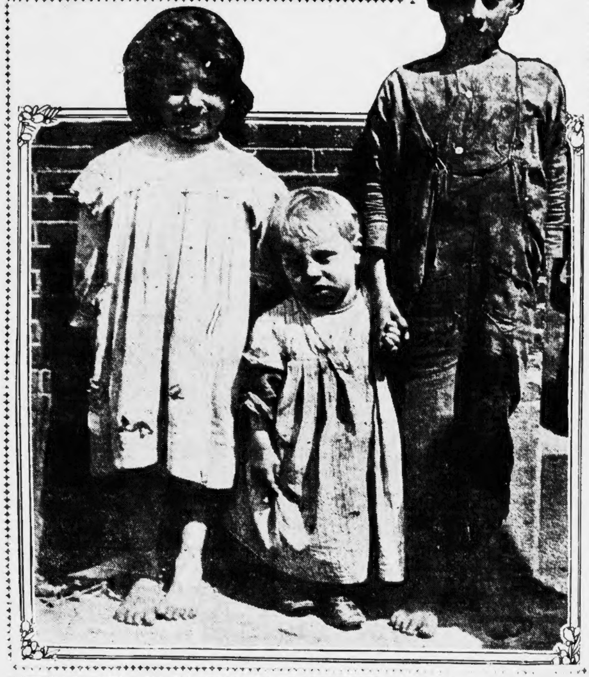
FRIENDS SAVE MOTHER AND SIX CHILDREN FROM PITIFUL FATE

Raise Purse at Last Moment to Keep Mrs. Ardolino, Deserted by Husband, From Eviction.



ARDOLINO CHILDREN SAVED FROM EVICTION.

Because several friends rallied to her assistance and sent her a purse containing money Mrs. Fortunato Ardolino, who lives in apartments in the tenement at No. 69 Prince street, and was to-day expecting to be evicted and thrown on the street with her six young children, is smiling and happy.

Yesterday, the pretty Italian woman, whose husband, a barber, who formerly ran a shop at No. 111 Milk street, deserted her several months ago, was plunged in woe. She said that Jacob N. Fleisher, her landlord, had served notice of eviction because the August rent had not been paid, and she had no money to pay for her rooms during September. Friends hearing of her plight raised a purse containing $22, and to-day this was given her before Mr. Fleisher arrived to collect his rent. Mrs. Ardolino handed him money sufficient to pay the August rent and Mr. Fleisher said that he would allow her to pay the September rent, one-half on the 15th, and the balance the last of the month.

The young woman's Italian friends have promised to do all that they can to aid her, and declare that she shall not be evicted. Mrs. Ardolino, who is very pretty, says that her husband ran away with another woman. She says that until he met this woman he was a kind and loving husband. She thinks that he has gone to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where the woman he is alleged to have run away with lives.

SAYS ACCUSED "DEN" DOCTOR GIRL'S FRIEND

Society Women Sob at Eloquent Defence in Maine Murder Trial

COURT ROOM CROWDED

Special to the Boston American.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 31.—At the opening of the Supreme Court session to-day Judge Louis C. Stearns, senior counsel for Dr. W. H. H. Briggs, on trial for the murder of Miss Maude B. Taggett, who died last March as the result of an illegal operation, began his closing argument for the defence. Numerous society women, scores of prominent attorneys and almost every physician of prominence in Bangor were in court. As the trial draws to a close interest in the social, medical and fraternal worlds, for Dr. Briggs was prominent in many secret orders, is at fever heat.

Society Women Weep

Judge Stearns is perhaps the most eloquent man in the Penobscot bar. He swayed the great throng at his will with the grace, vigor and beauty of his oratory. When with the full power of his magnificent voice he gave a graphic, vivid description of Dr. Briggs's attendance upon the sick girl during the last hours of her illness, society women bowed their faces in their hands and sobbed.

"Because he attended her, because he nursed her, because he gave her the medicines which physicians say were necessary is Dr. Briggs then a murderer?"

Scores State's Testimony.

The speaker then took up in detail the contentions of the State. In scathing terms he arraigned the testimony of Mme. Wesley, upon which the State principally depends.

"Are you to send a man into living death?" he asked, "on such testimony as that—a story falling from the polluted lips of a self-confessed liar."

During the trial yesterday Dr. Briggs had scarcely finished telling the jury of his connection with the case when Assistant Attorney General Pillbrook sprang a surprise by introducing two new witnesses in rebuttal of what the doctor had just told. They were Mrs. Annie Durgin and her daughter, Miss Nellie Durgin, who live in the Dolan block, where Mrs. Belle Wesley has her rooms.

Saw Doctor Enter House.

It was denied by the doctor that he had asked Mrs. Wesley to take the girl to her rooms or that he had given her money for the care of Miss Taggett. Mrs. Durgin and her daughter, however, testified in rebuttal that they had seen Dr. Briggs go into Mrs. Wesley's apartment that Saturday afternoon at 3:15.

Dr. Briggs denied the damaging statements that Mrs. Wesley and Arthur Rosey have made in regard to his having advised them to stick to one story.

"I did not meet the Taggett girl until 5:30 o'clock in the evening of February 24," he said, in direct testimony, "when, upon entering my office for the first time that afternoon I found her waiting there."

Grandfather's Cure for Constipation

GREAT medicine, the Sawbuck. Two hours a day sawing wood will keep anyone's Bowels regular.

No need of pills, Cathartics, Castor Oil, nor "Physic" if you'll only work the Sawbuck regularly.

Exercise is Nature's Cure for Constipation and, a Ten-Mile walk will do, if you haven't got a wood-pile.

But, if you will take your Exercise in an Easy Chair, there's only one way to do that, because,—there's only one kind of Artificial Exercise for the Bowels and its name is "CASCARETS."

Cascarets are the only means to exercise the Bowel Muscles without work.

They don't Purge, Gripe, nor "upset your Stomach," because they don't act like "Physics."

They don't flush out your Bowels and Intestines with a costly waste of Digestive Juice, as Salts, Castor Oil, Calomel, Jalap, or Aperient Waters always do.

No—Cascarets strengthen and stimulate the Bowel Muscles, that line the Food passages and that tighten up when food touches them, thus driving the food to its finish.

A Cascaret acts on your Bowel Muscles as if you had just sawed a cord of wood, or walked ten miles.

Cascarets move the Food Naturally, digesting it without waste of tomorrow's Gastric Juice.

CAMBRIDGE MEN FORM INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE

ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING START BRANCH OF STATE ORGANIZATION.

Citizens of Cambridge, at a well attended and enthusiastic meeting at Washington Hall, No. 573 Massachusetts avenue, last evening, organized a branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts.

Two resolutions were passed. The first was:

> Resolved, that it is the unanimous sentiment of this meeting that the lobby, especially fostered by the privately owned public utilities, is a most dangerous symptom of the present prevalence of graft in government and should be speedily and effectually eradicated.

The other was:

> Resolved, that we, citizens of Cambridge, assembled at this informal meeting, unanimously approve and indorse the principles set forth in the membership roll of the Independence League of Massachusetts; that we believe there is a need and a demand for such an organization in Cambridge, and that we hereby organize a branch of the league in this city and do all within our power to secure members and to advance the promulgation of its principles.

Secretary Augustus Seaver of the Cambridge League of Municipal Ownership Associations called the meeting to order and voiced the feeling that a league should be formed. "Cambridge has demonstrated in the past that there is a large body of her citizens who are actively interested in the movement to place in the hands of the people those utilities which by their nature are monopolies. We have a large membership in the Municipal Ownership League, and there will be few, I believe, who will not be glad to join the Independence League of Massachusetts.

"We in Cambridge who have been interested in the public ownership movement have on more than one occasion urged the forming of a State organization to advocate that principle of government. We now find, in the Independence League, a rapidly growing movement, which promises to become one of the most powerful political factors in the State, which has ownership of public utilities by the people as the first paragraph of its declaration of principles. And an examination of its other aims show them to be such as every plain citizen who owes no allegiance to the party bosses can indorse the people's direct control of their servants, election of United States Senators by the people, the protection of legitimate capital by denying the right of existence to criminal and oppressive trusts, the recognition of labor unions in all legitimate efforts to properly regulate the pay and hours of working people, the expert scrutiny of proposed legislation affecting the working people and the general public, and laws to abolish the corrupt lobby and punish bribe takers and bribe givers.

"We know that there is today a vast difference between the parties and the party machines. We may be in sympathy with the principles of the Republican or Democratic parties and opposed to the coterie or clique that controls the party machinery. We want independence in politics. The country needs it. The time is ripe for it. In the Independence League we find the opportunity to unite to secure it. I for one favor the movement enthusiastically."

Mr. Seaver was applauded by every man present. Secretary J. F. Davis of the State league was called upon to explain in detail the purposes of the league, the method of organization and the plan of campaign. When he had finished he was questioned by various citizens as to matters of detail, and then the formation of a league was discussed in an informal manner by many of those present.

It was voted that a provisional executive committee be selected, with authority to explain the aims of the league and receive the enrollment of members, and to recommend to a meeting to be held in a week nominees for the offices of president, secretary and executive committee. This committee was made up as follows:

Edward F. Delany, Ward 3; Edward Cassidy, Ward 4; John S. McLeod, Ward 5; S. W. St. Clair, Ward 6; Edwin C. Dow, Ward 7; William H. Lynch, Ward 8; Augustus Seaver, committeeman-at-large.

Edward Gallagher, Joseph S. Coffee and Herman Zamour were appointed a committee on membership, to assist the executive committee in securing applications for membership.

Every person present signed the membership roll, and it was voted to meet Thursday evening, September 6, at Central Labor Union Hall, No. 622 Massachusetts avenue, to complete the work of organization. At that time it is expected that many additional members will be present, and some prominent speaker representing the State league will address the members and their friends.

IRISH FAMINE IN WAKE OF CROP FAILURE

Farmers, Unable to Find Employment, on the Verge of Starvation.

DONEGAL, Ireland, Aug. 31.—Partial famine threatens the western part of Ireland through the failure of the crops. Ten per cent. of the potato crop is practically worthless, and 10 per cent. more is diseased. The percentage of destruction to the other crops is slightly lower.

Most of the farmers are unable to raise this season more than enough to keep their own families supplied, and there will be no surplus for the markets or next year's seeding, consequently the plight of the poor laborers is much worse. Many of them, unable to find employment, are already verging on starvation.

To Open Relief Works.

At a special meeting of the Sligo County ment, introduced a resolution calling upon Council, John O'Dowd, member of Parliathe government to open relief works, as the situation was blacker than at any time since 1879. The council unanimously passed the resolution. Other local bodies are contemplating similar action.

H. A. Law, member of Parliament for West Donegal, in an interview with the correspondent of the Publishers' Press today, said:

Rain Does Damage.

"Crops everywhere west have been affected by the continuous wet weather, especially the bog land potatoes and mountain hay. I do not think a general famine at present is to be feared, but poor families undoubtedly will suffer severely."

BARBER ARRESTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER

GREAT BARRINGTON, Aug. 31.—Conflicting testimony of witnesses of Thomas Kelly's death, about blows struck preceding his fatal fall after ejectment from a barber shop, caused the arrest of Robert Weeks, the barber, on a charge of manslaughter, for a hearing on September 6. The autopsy showed that the death of Kelly was due to concussion or a hemorrhage of the brain.

RAISES PRICE OF ICE.

MARLBORO, Aug. 31.—The Lake Williams Ice Company, the only company doing business in this city, has announced another increase in price, to go into effect September 1.

MRS. ASTOR IN FAILING HEALTH, THE '400' HEAR

Society's Leader Reported to Be in Charge of Physicians and Nurses on Steamer.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The part of New York society which now is in the city is talking of little else than the reports which reach town of the failing health of Mrs. Astor, for thirty years leader of the "400," who is now on the way from Europe and reported to be in charge of physicians and nurses, and who, it is asserted, is not only failing physically, but is less alert mentally than formerly.

Mrs. Astor is now nearly seventy-six years old. Her birthday comes on September 22. For a generation she has been the undisputed head of New York society. It has been many years since she failed to appear at Newport early in the season to rule her willing subjects.

This year, however, she will arrive when the season is practically at an end, and in such condition that it is highly improbable that she will be able to take part in any social functions. Before she left for Europe her health had become greatly impaired.

ASBESTOS SETS BIG FACTORY ON FIRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Fire burned an asbestos factory in Brooklyn last night. More extraordinary still, it is believed the blaze caught from the asbestos itself. The H. W. Johns-Manville Company, who own the factory and stock at the foot of Thirty-ninth street, Brooklyn, will lose $100,000.

JUMPS FOR LIFE 8 TIMES A DAY AT WONDERLAND

Has Risked Death 300 Times in "Fire and Flames" Shows American How He Does Feat.

How would you like to jump from the roof of a four story burning building seven or eight times a day?

Claude Mitchell does it, and he doesn't seem to realize the grave danger in which he lives. Mitchell is the man who is employed to make the 60-foot jump in the spectacular entertainment, "Fire and Flames," at Wonderland. The spectator who witnesses Mitchell's daring leap is probably not impressed with the real danger that attends this performance, but a few minutes behind the scenes is enough to convince one that Mitchell practically takes his life in his hands every time he leaps off the roof in this realistic spectacle.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter yesterday Mitchell said: "I've made this jump about 300 times this Summer, and I don't mind telling you that there have been lots of times since the show opened when I felt that I would like to resign my job. Say, you can't have any idea how strenuous this rescue business is. The only way that you can get 'hep' to it is to come along with me and see how it is done."

The much rescued man looked at the reporter doubtfully.

"Don't you think you'd care to do it?" he asked.

Went to Roof Top.

Now this particular reporter was not extra long on courage, nor was he consumed with a burning desire to accept martyrdom that the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN might be entertained. Still, thinking that perhaps Mr. Mitchell was "bluffing" and might not make good the reporter accepted the invitation, assuming as much nonchalance as he could muster.

So from a safe vantage point on the top of the roof of the four-story building doomed to destruction by the flames the newspaper man witnessed at close range the thrilling life preserving leap of Claude Mitchell, professional fire victim and erstwhile actor.

The show commenced. The curtains were drawn back and the incidental pantomime that precedes the main part of the exhibition was performed and enjoyed by the crowd on the grand stand. The reporter listened to the music of the German band and the Salvation Army, and was just beginning to think that perhaps it wasn't so bad after all, when the cry of "Fire" came up from the square and Mitchell began to assume a sort of professional air, very much the same as is perceived in a doctor who is about to enter the operating room.

"Here's where I get busy," he laughed.

Smoke and Flames Roll Up.

The roaring of the flames came up to the two men on the roof with dread significance. The explosion of the dummy paint store sounded terribly loud and the uproar grew in volume until it seemed that a great army of evil spirits was loose.

Suddenly the chief shouted: "Here's the life net—jump!" and Mitchell jumped.

The curtains were drawn and the flames subsided as if by a wizard's magic. Mitchell's jump was over and he was ready for the next performance.

MITCHELL'S JUMP FOR LIFE.

FIRST MORAN RALLY IN LYNN HELD TO-NIGHT

Prohibitionists and Democrats to Join in an Open-Air Demonstration.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Aug. 31.—On the large lawn surrounding the residence of Wilbur D. Moon, No. 46 Maple street, Lynn, the first Moran rally in Lynn is to be held to-night. Prominent Democrats and Prohibitionists will address the large crowds which are expected to be present.

Wilbur D. Moon, who will act as host for the Moran adherents in Lynn, is secretary of the Massachusetts Prohibition Alliance. The list of speakers already secured consists of John A. Nichols, chairman of the Prohibition State Committee; Jonathan S. Lewis, candidate for Secretary of State on the Prohibition Ticket, and last year's Prohibition candidate for Governor, and William A. Kelley, former Representative from Lynn and a member of the Lynn Democratic City Committee.

Other prominent Democrats, it is understood, are to be present to-night, and several of them will be asked to make addresses. The lawn is large and ornamented with many beds of dahlias, now in full bloom. The trees will support many festoons of Japanese lanterns, as Mr. Moon is preparing to decorate his residence and grounds in honor of the occasion of the first Moran rally in Lynn.

TO CONQUER WORLD, BUT POLICE DELAY

The world-conquering trip of Leon F. Ruggles, fifteen years old, of Mattapan, who started on a bicycle, is delayed. He is in custody at Providence, held for communication with his parents. His father is Dr. W. O. Ruggles of Mattapan. He told the police that he had not gotten along well with his father and, ascertaining that he contemplated placing him in the navy, started forth to conquer the world. Leon says his father told him he was at liberty to make a try at it.

JOIN THE INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE

It Stands for HONEST GOVERNMENT, for Politics FREE FROM CORPORATION CONTROL, for

THE DEMOCRACY OF THOMAS JEFFERSON AND THE REPUBLICANISM OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

In Brief, for POLITICAL FREEDOM!

Patriotic citizens all over the country are anxious to unite for SELF PROTECTION. Why not? Corrupt and selfish interests are united for EXTORTION and OPPRESSION.

Can YOU see any difference between the Democracy of August Belmont and the Republicanism of J. Pierpont Morgan?

Join the League Today

> "The whole art of Government consists in the art of being honest."
> —THOMAS JEFFERSON

Leagues are already established in many of the towns and cities of NEW YORK, ILLINOIS, INDIANA, CALIFORNIA, MASSACHUSETTS and other States.

They are growing by leaps and bounds.

INDEPENDENCE MUST SWEEP THE COUNTRY.

Don't you want to be a part of the onrushing movement?

The Independence League

New England Headquarters, 402-403 Winthrop Building, Boston.

In view of the fact that a corrupt non-partisan alliance exists in this State between Political Bossism and Private Monopoly, resulting in the present reign of GRAFT, and threatening the perpetuity of popular government as established and maintained by Jefferson and Lincoln:—We, the undersigned, believing that the hour has come for all patriotic citizens, without regard to past political affiliations, to unite in an organized effort to put an end to this disgraceful and dangerous situation, subscribe our names as charter members of The Independence League of

....City ....County

....Town ....State

and agree to do all in our power to restore the government of the City, County and State into the hands of the people, as designed by the founders of our government.

To Accomplish This, We Favor—

First: —Public Ownership of those utilities which in their nature are monopolies.

Second: —The Enactment of laws which will give the people absolute control of their public servants in office.

Third: —Direct Nominations by the people in place of nominations by cliques and party bosses.

Fourth: —Laws to abolish the corrupt lobby and punish bribe givers and bribe takers.

Fifth: —The Abolition of discrimination in railroad rates; good roads to facilitate the transportation of farm products to profitable markets, and pure food laws.

Sixth: —The recognition of Labor Unions in all legitimate efforts to properly regulate the pay and working hours of working people.

Seventh:—Careful and expert scrutiny of all proposed legislation affecting working people and the general public, to the end that acts against their interests may not be passed before their purpose is understood.

Eighth: —The Protection of Legitimate Capital, and denying the right of existence to criminal and oppressive trusts.

Ninth: —The Election of United States Senators by the people.

NAME.	ADDRESS.

If you wish to become a member of the Independence League, cut out the above membership roll, sign it, secure the signatures of friends if you have time, and mail it to J. F. Davis, Secretary, 402-403 Winthrop Building, Boston.

If you are willing and able to take active part in the forming of a league in your city or town, fill out, in addition, the slip below, and mail it to the same address.

Secretary Independence League:

Dear Sir:—I am willing to do all in my power to advance the interests of the Independence League in my city or town, to assist in securing members, and to take such active part in conducting the organization as I may be called upon to do.

Name ....

Street and No. ....

Town or City ....

County ....State ....

There should be a League in YOUR city or town without delay. By doing your share toward starting one, and toward its success after it is started, you will be performing a PATRIOTIC DUTY toward yourself, your neighbors, and your fellow-citizens in your county and State.

Join the League Today

> "A Government of the People, by the People, and for the People."
> —ABRAHAM LINCOLN

The purpose of the INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE is to return to those principles of government upon which this nation was originally established; to secure for the States and their inhabitants a government BY THE MAJORITY IN THE INTERESTS OF THE MAJORITY in place of a government by cliques for corporations.

Do You Want to Be INDEPENDENT OF BOSS RULE—INDEPENDENT OF CORPORATION CONTROL—INDEPENDENT OF ANY PARTY SUBJECT TO BOSS RULE OR CORPORATION CONTROL? . . . .

This sheet may be used as a poster in a window or other conspicuous place. Membership blanks and other literature of the league will be mailed upon application to the Secretary, 402 Winthrop Bldg., Boston.

REPRINTED FROM HEARST'S BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN OF AUGUST 12.

"TAKE 'EM OR LEAVE 'EM"

DOESN'T this picture tell the truth about American politics and American candidates in recent times, fellow-citizens? Isn't it a fact that your candidates, Democrats and Republicans, have been handed to you out of the same box?

Don't you find in the United States Senate the TRUST REPUBLICAN, Aldrich, working with the TRUST DEMOCRAT, Bailey, to help along monopoly?

Don't you find the same trust power controlling the bosses, the miscalled "leaders" of both parties?

How many times have the people in this country gone to the polls to vote knowing that no matter WHICH ticket they might vote THEY WOULD VOTE FOR THE TRUSTS inevitably?

Ask yourself how it has been in your own State, in your own city or village.

There ARE exceptions. Occasionally a man of conviction refuses to be owned and FORCES recognition in the face of organized money's opposition.

But how OFTEN does that happen?

Not often enough to interfere with the truth of the statement that both the political parties have become trust-owned parties, and all of the political bosses nominating candidates and herding voters like sheep to the polls have fed out of the same trust manger.

Let Morgan, Rockefeller or Belmont or Ryan stick his head out of his office door and whistle—does he know what kind of a political yellow dog will come at his call? Does he know whether the whining answer will be from a Democratic or a Republican boss?

No, AND HE DOES NOT CARE.

Whichever it may be, he knows his orders will be obeyed. He pays both; HE OWNS BOTH.

In the recent past Uncle Sam, when he came around for men to do his work, has fared as in this picture. He has been told by the trusts, "Here is your choice, MY Democrat, or MY Republican. YOU HAVE GOT TO TAKE ONE OR THE OTHER—THESE OR NOTHING."

But that situation is changing. There has been a great deal of talking, a great deal of discussing and a great deal of THINKING in this country during the past few years.

The farmer, sitting by his fire in Winter, with nearly all the result of his work in the pockets of the Railroad Trust or the Harvester Trust or the Beef Trust, HAS BEEN THINKING DEEPLY and preparing a surprise for the man that keeps the trust shop.

The mechanic, giving his wife money to pay the bill of the Gas Trust, the Ice Trust, the Milk Trust, the Food Trust, has also been thinking.

In the columns of this newspaper every Sunday and every day at least four millions of American voters have met and exchanged ideas as a smaller number met and thought together in the public square at Athens centuries ago.

PARTY SERVILITY has been replaced by INDEPENDENT THOUGHT.

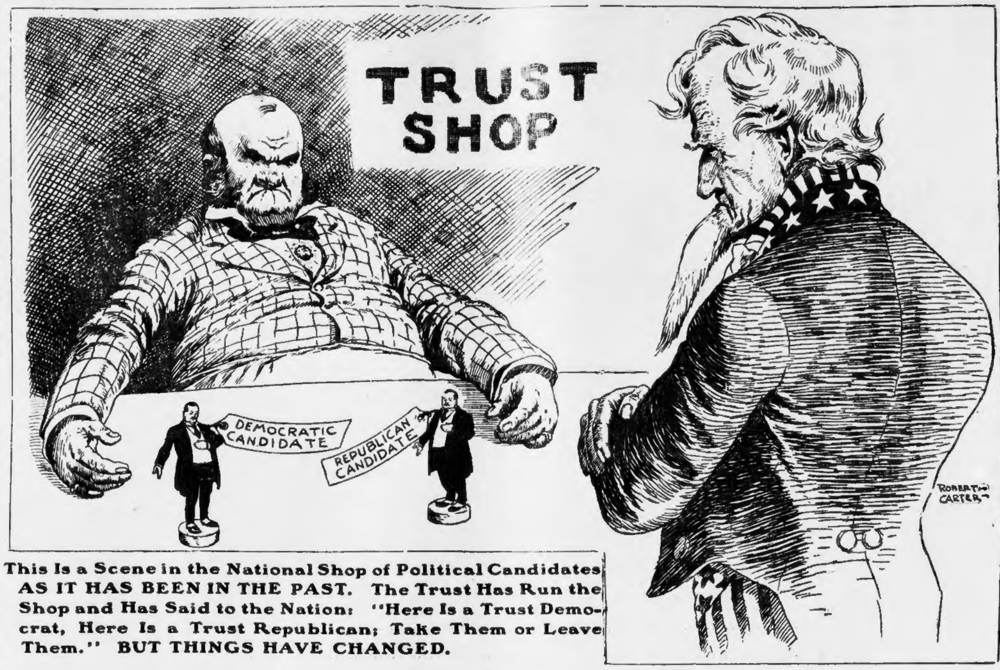
The American has made up his mind to think and vote for himself AS AN INDEPENDENT MAN. The keeper of the trust candidate shop is worried. He fears that he will no longer be able to fool his public.

He cannot think of a trust dummy that the people will accept as a real man just now. The bosses and the newspapers that belong to the trusts are dancing about nervously. Name after name they mention of the trust kind, but they know that the mere sound of the names is a warning to public intelligence.

Friends, and readers, the day of better political thinking and action has come. INDEPENDENCE is the great power in the land and the great moving sentiment to-day.

Encourage it in yourselves and in others. It has been developed by you, who read this newspaper, and it gives great promise for the country's future.

THINK, TALK and VOTE as independent men and no longer as mere counters in a political game played by trusts and bosses.



This Is a Scene in the National Shop of Political Candidates AS IT HAS BEEN IN THE PAST. The Trust Has Run the Shop and Has Said to the Nation: "Here Is a Trust Democrat, Here Is a Trust Republican; Take Them or Leave Them." BUT THINGS HAVE CHANGED.

Multiply This Picture by Ten Thousand

THIS picture presents to you the commonest sight in the world. You do not see it with your eyes very often—fortunately—for this is an indoor scene. The world KNOWS as little as it CARES about it.

The child is dead, and the mother that bore her, worn out with sleepless watching, vain struggling with poverty and hopelessness, wishes that she might follow her child into the world of rest.

Ten thousand children die in this way, and ten thousand more, AND STILL ANOTHER TEN THOUSAND, while "statesmen" are arguing public questions in comfortable committee rooms.

One of many features of our brutal misnamed civilization may have killed this child.

She may have been poisoned by the products of the Milk Trust or the Meat Trust—poverty compels the mother to buy what is cheapest in a land where there is no longer anything cheap.

The child's health may have been weakened by the bad air of the schools. Tax-dodging of dishonest, rich men and the meanness of the stupid politician confine hundreds of thousands of children in school rooms where the air is unfit to breathe.

The tenement house life may have done its share. The disease that proved fatal may have been acquired in the filthy street—this child's only playground. Work in the factory or the mill, poor food, poor air, poor clothes, hard work, all may have done their share.

Many agencies have a hand in killing children, of whom tens of thousands have no chance in our beautiful civilization.

It is not a PLEASANT thing to think of a mother weeping beside a dead child, when a little money, a little humanity, EVEN A LITTLE RESPECT FOR LAW MIGHT HAVE SAVED IT.

But, when that mother straightened out the dead child's body and then bowed her head to shed the tears kept back for so long, every man in this country should have been COMPELLED to see her and to know what she has been through.

He should have seen the mother, too poor to buy from the Ice Trust the comfort that the poor child craved, too poor to get the advice of a doctor, too poor to get good food—too poor even to think of the fresh country air that Nature gives to all that can escape from the hells of great cities.

Everything that this child needed bountiful Nature has supplied in quantities unlimited in this wonderful country of ours. But between the child and the necessities of life there stood organized human selfishness, AND SHE HAD TO DIE.

There was profit for the heartless exploiters of humanity in her short life, and theirs is the responsibility for her death.

KILLED BY HUMAN BRUTALITY is the verdict on the death of this child, and of tens of thousands like her.

How can the men of the world tolerate such brutality? How can the most selfish mind deliberately plan to bring it about?

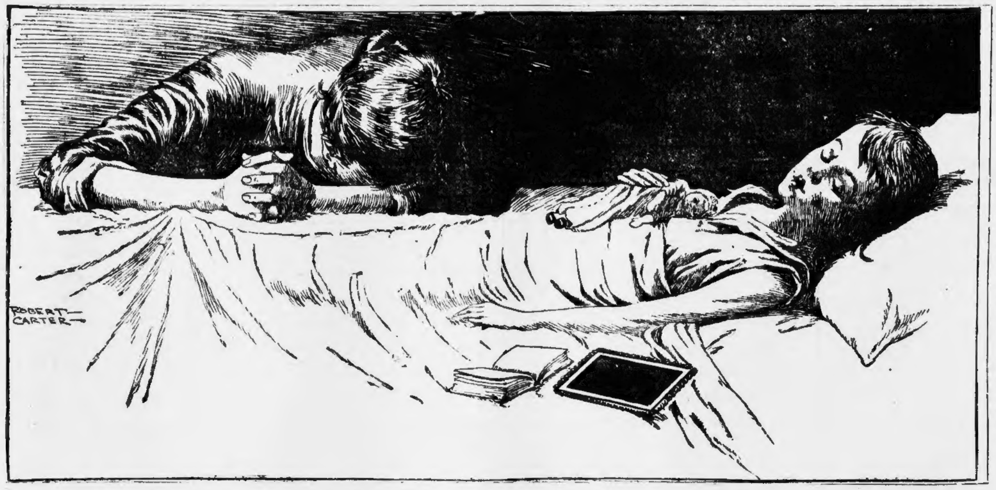
Will not the voters, WHO HAVE THE POWER IF THEY WILL USE IT, look upon this picture, realize that it reflects faithfully thousands upon thousands of actual scenes in life, AND RESOLVE TO PUT AN END TO THAT.

There is no use in appealing to the conscience of the man who poisons a nation's food supply, of the man who steals through a child's milk bottle, or of the brute who builds up his fortune on child labor.

Another weapon is needed for such criminals.

THAT WEAPON IS THE BALLOT. You, the voters, have it. Will you not use it, TOGETHER independently as MEN, and no longer as puppets?

This is the question that we shall ask you over and over until it shall be finally known whether or not the forces responsible for this picture and thousands like it are to rule this nation PERMANENTLY.



Imagine Ten Thousand Scenes Like This and You Will Have a Picture of Our "Civilization"

If you want to help make the above-pictured scenes impossible, join the Independence League and take part in the work of electing public officials who represent the people, not the plunderers of the people.

If a League has been formed in your town or ward, give your name to the secretary of that League, AND OFFER TO GET OUT AND WORK FOR THE LEAGUE. If no League has been formed, HELP FORM ONE; cut out the subscription blank on the other side of this sheet; sign it; get your friends to sign it; elect a temporary chairman and a secretary, and write the State Secretary of the League at 7 Winthrop Building, Boston, telling him what you have done. Workers are wanted in every town and city of New England.

GANS WEIGHED TO-DAY; IS UNDER 133 POUNDS

CHAMPION JIM JEFFRIES SAYS JOE GANS WILL BEAT NELSON, AND TELLS WHY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 31.—James J. Jeffries, the champion of the world, was in town yesterday. Jeffries was asked the opinion of the probable outcome of the Gans-Nelson fight, and expressed himself as decidedly in favor of the chances of Gans. The champion asked a lot of questions and answered them himself, and his talk was like this: "Would you figure that Mike 'Twin' Sullivan could beat Nelson? Certainly you would. Would you figure that Joe Walcott would beat Nelson? Certainly you would. Well, didn't Gans make a monkey of Sullivan twice. Didn't Gans have a shade on Joe Walcott in the draw battle they fought in San Francisco, and in which the 'Barbadoes Demon' put up one of the best fights of his career? On that figuring alone I cannot see where Nelson can possibly defeat Gans. The altitude will cut some figure in this fight, so the experts say. Most of them think that Gans will be the greater sufferer from the rarified atmosphere. I don't think so. Gans does not waste his punches or his strength. When he hits he generally lands, but Nelson is different. He is slamming away all the time, and whether his blows reach his opponent or not he is always delivering them. In the Britt fight at Colma he wasted enough blows to lick a ring full of opponents. Nelson stood the hard work at Colma all right, but the altitude may make it different at Goldfield. As it looks to me, Gans is a certain winner."

It's a pretty angry bunch of ball players that will meet the Pilgrims at the Huntington avenue grounds this afternoon, as the defeat handed out by the tail-end Boston team yesterday afternoon, when it felt so confident of winning, has made the visiting team as mad as a March hare.

Well, the Slowtown nine is out for revenge to-day. Rube Waddell will lead the Quaker indignation meeting, and with his curves and slants, etc., expects to humiliate the Bostons for their shameful work in stealing the game yesterday, when they mean so much these days, and bulldoze them into giving up any claim they may have on the battle.

Jesse Tannehill, who has always been very effective against the Athletics, may face them to-day in behalf of the Boston club. He pitched fine ball the last time out, and probably can duplicate the performance to-day.

Errors by the Athletics turned the scale of the close game with the Bostons yesterday, the latter winning, 3 to 2.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 31.—The Boston and Brooklyn National teams clash here for the third and last time of the season to-day. The series between the two teams stands even, Boston losing the first and taking the game yesterday.

McIntrye is carded to work for the home team to-day, while "Little Cy" Young is booked for the visiting aggregation.

The Bostons won yesterday, 8 to 5, by superior batting. No less than fourteen hits were made off the home pitchers, Scanlon and Stricklett.

Lindaman was touched hard in only one inning by the Brooklyns. It was in the eighth, when a bunch of hits scored two runs, and an error by Howard put over another.

The Bostons batted hard all the way, despite the fact that they are a badly crippled team. In fact, so hard did they pound the ball that Dr. Scanlon was obliged to retire in the fifth.

FIGHTERS SAY IT WILL NOT LAST OVER AN HOUR

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Aug. 31.—Joe Gans and Battling Nelson may hold different views on some subjects, but there is one point on which they agree. They both think that their Labor Day fight will be over within an hour. Each of them told me so to-day.

"Of course, the end may come sooner," said Nelson. "It may not last half a round. I'll go at Gans the way I go at every one I meet and as he says he will stay with me, from the jump, there is no telling the moment something may be heard to drop."

The Dane proceeded to explain why he felt that victory would come his way.

"I am not making any mistake about Gans's cleverness," he said. "I know he is one of the grandest boxers and one of the most thorough ring generals that ever wore gloves. I admit that he is as dangerous a man as I could tackle. In all-around work he has it on me, but I have one or two tricks up my sleeve that will put the stopper on all his fancy movements.

Will Spring New Tricks.

"Even though he has seen me fight, I don't think he is on to things that I will spring on him. I am vain enough to think I know wrinkles about fighting that no other pugilist is wise to. I have great confidence in myself when it comes to a finish fight, feeling that there is no one in my class who can stand as hot a pace or put up with as much rough usage as I can. I am only twenty-four years of age, while Gans is over thirty. Besides, I have been a careful liver, where he has not.

"Now, as to weight. Gans may be having trouble and he may not. You can't always bank on the dope that comes out of fighting camps, but I can say truthfully for my end of it that making 133 pounds is a joke.

"I could do 128 up here and be strong as I could wish. I don't care whether we fight in blistering heat or a cold wind. I can stand anything that any other man can stand in the way of weather and surroundings."

Now for the Gans side of it:

"About the only thing I give Nelson credit for is ruggedness," said Joe. "There is no occasion to watch for his right or his left. They are easily taken care of. What I have to do is keep tabs on his endurance and see that he does not become too strong.

"You know what I mean. I'll just have to keep him moving and knocking him around until I see a chance for a clip that will put his championship dreams to the bad.

"Honestly, I don't think I should have any more trouble with him than I've had with an amateur. I never figured him as having any class, and his record shows that he is not much of a knocker-out. It took him nine rounds to settle 'Young Corbett,' who was all in, and that was his best performance from a time standpoint.

Made Him Look Foolish.

"When Nelson was East he matched himself against boys like Attell, O'Neill and 'Kid' Sullivan, and he made every one of them come to 130 pounds, while he weighed whatever he liked. Take it from me, each of these youngsters made him look like a dunce, and I'll ask any one with a grain of reason to stop and think what I could do to any of these kids if I held them down to 130 pounds and fought at catch-weights myself."

Gans was as chipper as possible. He seems to have solved the weight problem to his own satisfaction, and his manner is accordingly care free.

At Gans's invitation I tested his weight, first of all assuring myself by other tests that the scales were correct. With the bar placed at the 133-pound notch Gans stood on the platform and there was not a flicker of the lever.

It was tacitly understood that I was not to ask the colored pugilist to show me his exact weight, but I should judge he was a half pound at least below the required notch.

I found that Gans is not pinching himself in the matter of food or liquids. He takes a bottle of beer occasionally with his dinner, and it looks to me as though the weight question is one about which there need be no further speculation. It remains to be seen whether he will be able to put up a strong fight. He says with all the earnestness in the world that he could not wish to feel better for a championship battle, and I will say frankly that I believe he is thoroughly sincere this time.

He may overrate himself, but, of course, that is a matter only which the Labor Day contest can decide. Most of those who visit the Gans headquarters are favorably impressed with his work. He hammers away at the punching bag and trips the rope sometimes for twenty minutes at a stretch, and his breathing is not the least bit disturbed by the swift, continuous exertions. His face glistens with perspiration, and his eyes are full of snap. He is lean, all right, but he seems capable of enduring much fatigue.

There is much betting talk and very few actual wagers so far, and it looks as though the majority of the sports here are waiting for a higher market, as it were. In the money already placed there has been nothing like regularity of price, the odds being determined by the parties to each bet. As a consequence, all kinds of wagers are reported, some being made at even money, while others show Gans favorite at odds ranging from 10 to 6 to 10 to 9. The latest is that Nolan accepted $1,000 to $800, but declared he would take it once only.

NEARLY SWAM ENGLISH CHANNEL

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 31.—Although he covered more than forty-two miles, several miles more than the distance from Dover to the French coast, T. W. Burgess, the long distance swimmer, failed in the effort he made yesterday to swim the English channel. His performance is one of the most remarkable swims on record.

Shifting tides prevented Burgess from reaching his goal. He was buffeted about and swept far out of his course at times, but stuck gamely to his task until he was seized with cramps, after having been in the water for eighteen hours.

At the time he was forced to surrender Burgess was within four miles of the French coast. This makes the seventh time Burgess has attempted to swim the channel, and he has met defeat each time.

35,000 GALLONS OF OIL ON THE CUP COURSE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

It is understood that the Standard Oil Company has taken steps to acquire ownership of all the principal alcohol distilling plants in this country.

The chief reason for this action on the part of the Standard Oil Company was the recent passage of the denatured alcohol bill by Congress.

Experts employed by the Rockefeller interests, after experimenting, reported that alcohol could not be manufactured cheaply enough to make it a serious competitor of gasoline, but that it could be used in the manufacture of mercerized cotton and fabrics, and would be a favorable product to control. The statement of the Standard Oil experts must be taken with a grain of salt, as people in a position to know claim that alcohol can be sold at retail for ten cents a gallon, with a fair margin of profit.

The present garage price of gasoline is twenty-five cents a gallon, as against a twenty-cent rate that has been in force about two years.

In England the conditions are even worse. From sixteen cents, the prevailing price in 1904, the cost to the consumer has been raised to forty-five cents a gallon.

It was in the hope of reducing the cost of fuel that the motorists advocated the passage of the free alcohol bill. At present there is a revenue tax of $2 a gallon on alcohol.

At the time of the passage of the bill its advocates asserted that, if the measure were passed, it would be impossible for the Standard Oil or any other interest to control its production, because any one could set up a still and manufacture it, so long as they rendered it unfit for internal consumption.

It is estimated that it will take 35,000 gallons of oil to cover the Vanderbilt course. Contracts for oiling the course have been awarded to Nassau County contractors, who will commence the oiling process on the first of the month.

* * *

All of the local tire branches are to take an inventory to-morrow. Just to see what stock there may be on hand, and incidentally to give their home offices an opportunity to make a clean settlement with the tire trust. By Tuesday, if not before, a new set of prices will be sent out by all the home offices, and then will come the first real fight that has occurred in the tire industry for many years.

GREAT CARD FOR LAST DAY AT READVILLE TRACK

BY Edward E. Cogswell.

"Getaway Day" for the Grand Circuit horses at Readville is filled with good things in the way of racing, as, outside of the free-for-all pacers, this afternoon comes the 2:07 trot and the 2:11 pace.

In the natural course of figuring Angus Pointer will go to the post the choice in the first class. To be sure, he runs against a new factor in the stallion Locanda, which makes his initial start of the year. Last season the latter gained a record of 2:02 in one of the hardest fought races of the year, and those who know him the best feel satisfied he will retire next Fall with a record below the two-minute notch. However, it is not to be expected he should be so good right now, just out of the stud, as will be the case later on.

Bound to be a strong factor is the Boston gelding John M., as the race he had last week must have helped get him in perfect condition. He has not to improve much to let the other star pacers in the country know they have had "one horse race" when they defeat him. A prominent horseman said to-day that if John M. were to go through the circuit to Lexington he would have all the balance of the free-for-allers skunked to a dot long before the windup.

How Angiola can get worse than first in the 2:07 trot is a question that must be solved on the race track. Turley is coming better in every race, but it appears he ought not to be capable of taking the measure of Ames's mare this afternoon, if the latter will stick to a trot.

"Long Shot" Cox is to give his Argot Boy his second trial this week. He should be the best in the 2:11 pace, and John Farnum have the pleasure of going home to-night after seeing the son of Argot Wilkes at the head of the summary. Bert Fowler says that Stiletto will go the best race of his career, and to keep an eye on him. Second money for him should show that Fowler knew what he was talking about, as the much-touted Moore is said to have a world of speed and is long overdue.

EXPECT TO WIN BY KNOCKOUT LABOR DAY

A knockout is the route by which Billy Mellody and Joe Thomas, the slugging welterweights, expect to win by when they meet Labor Day at the Lincoln A. C. Both are confident that they can land the punch first, as they are in the pink of condition now.

Thomas says that he came all the way from the Coast to win this match, as it means the top of the heap for him if he can get the verdict.

To Hub fans it is the greatest match ever seen in this vicinity, as two better fighters are not known in the ranks. Then their hitting powers are something terrific, and there will be no let up from the time the gong rings till one or the other lies on the mat unable to rise.

Indian Joe Gregg will be matched to meet Jerry Gaines instead of Joe Geary, and this will be a pippin bout. The returns of the Gans-Nelson fight will come by special wire, beginning at 6 o'clock.

MERRILL SEES NOTHING TO IT BUT HARVARD

PUTNEY, Eng., Aug. 31.—With the water kicking up at a high old rate, the Harvard crew, which meets the Cambridge crew September 8, displayed marked ability as rough water oarsmen in their trial spin yesterday. So good was their showing that the enthusiasts who saw them practice think they will have an easy time winning from the native oarsmen.

The Crimsonites were the first in the water, and paddled to Crabtree and back. They had another start from a mounted staff below Walden's wharf. They rowed twenty strokes for the first minute, but droped to thirty-seven for the full minute.

Manager Merrill, of the Harvard crew, says that it looks brighter with each succeeding day for the American eight, and he also declared that he doesn't see how they can be beaten by the Britishers.

DOROTHY DIX TELLS HOW TO WIN THE GIRL YOU LOVE

Study Her Tastes; Please Her With What She Likes to Have

YOUNG man, have you met Miss Dottie Dimple at a dance, or a reception, and by reason of the set of the little curl upon her forehead, or the cute way she smiled at you as she handed you a cup of tea, you are convinced that she is the one girl in the world for you, and was ordained by Heaven to make you a happy Christian wife and helpmeet?

Maybe so. Maybe you have missed your guess about seven million times, but, at any rate, the most absorbing question in the world to you just now is how you can make yourself solid with her.

Unfortunately, there are no set rules for the game of courtship. Every man must play his own hand to such leads as the lady makes, but there are a few general principles that may be enunciated as at least indicating the proper moves.

Begin, then, by filing a declaration of your intentions, so to speak, at the start. This does not mean that you should pop the question on the second occasion you ever talk to a girl five minutes alone.

Even a debutante is suspicious of an affection that is so sudden, but there is no use wasting time letting a girl think that your visits are to her father, or her grandmother, or her little brother.

Don't Overdo It

NO illusion is so dear to a woman's heart as the belief that her charms are such that she can strike 'em dead in love on the spot, and she cannot help feeling tenderly toward the man to whom she can point to as proof positive of her good opinion of herself being justified by results.

Therefore, if you are anxious to make good with Miss Dottie Dimple, let her know from the jump that she has made an awful hit with you.

The advantages of this are threefold. 1st. It will separate you from the herd of Tom, Dick and Harrys that may mean business or may not, and that are all bunched together in her mind; 2d it will set her to thinking about you, and a woman's thoughts run to love as naturally and inevitably as a stream runs to the sea; 3d it will convince her that you are a young man of most remarkable perspicacity, taste and judgement.

CAUTION: DON'T overdo the first impression spiel, however. That would make you too easy, and women have considerable sporting blood in their veins and love the chase.

Moderate your transports, and give her to understand that while she has fired your fancy you have a deep, passionate nature that has never been fathomed, and that still sleeps under a glacial covering.

This will start any woman alive out on a north pole discovery expedition to your heart.

Sympathize with her and ask her to tell you the story of her life. It will sound like a chapter out of the A B C book, but urge her to relate her chocolate eclair annals.

For ages and ages men have sought to win women to love by telling of their own dark brown pasts, and so enlisting a woman's interest and sympathy.

Lead Pipe Cinch

THE plan has worked fairly well, but the sure lead pipe cinch that never fails is for a man to hang upon her words while a woman turns her soul wrong side out and shows him all the hopes and aspirations and dreams that the world never suspects her of having concealed about her person.

This little piece of inside information is what the villain that breaks up homes always wins out on, for when a woman finds a man who will listen to her when she talks about anything but clothes and society she calls him an "affinity" and elopes with him, if he insists upon it.

Study the woman you wish to please.

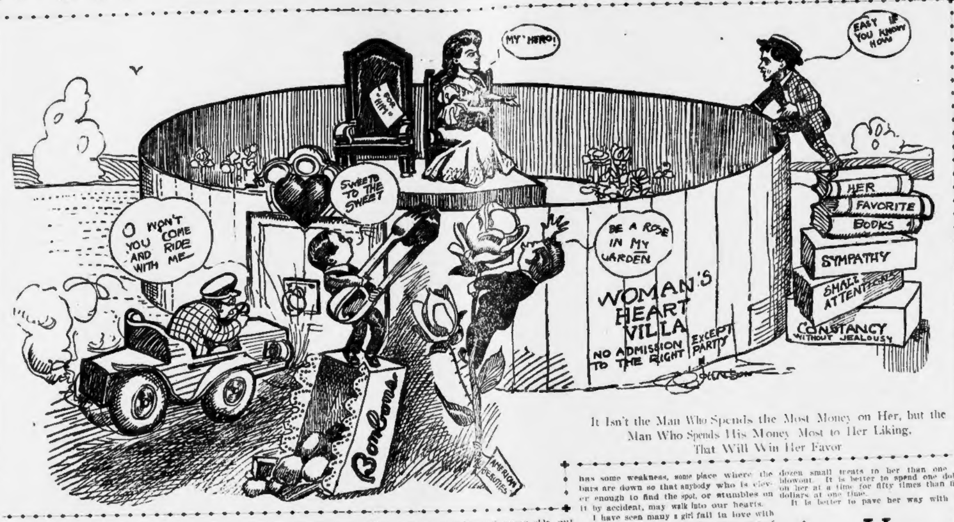
Every mother's son and daughter of us has some weakness, some place where the bars are down so that anybody who is clever enough to find the spot, or stumbles on it by accident, may walk into our hearts.

I have seen many a girl fall in love with a man because he played the same sort of golf that she did, or because she was lonely, or wanted tenderness, or was unhappy at home and he supplied the long-felt want. You can't please every girl the same way, but you can please every girl some way, and the trick is to find out the way.

Keep up a fusillade of small attentions. The victorious army is not the one that fires a broadside and then retires from the field, but the one that keeps peppering the enemy until it riddles its defences.

The same tactics hold good in winning a woman's favor. It is better to extend a dozen small treats to her than one big blowout. It is better to spend one dollar on her at a time for fifty times than fifty dollars at one time.

It is better to pave her way with the



It Isn't the Man Who Spends the Most Money on Her, but the Man Who Spends His Money Most to Her Liking, That Will Win Her Favor

Learn to Pick Out the Things She Loves Best in the World

newest magazine, the latest book, the out-of-door flower of the season, than to lump the whole amount in an edition de luxe or a cartload of American Beauties.

Johnny-on-the-Spot

A WOMAN that is the right sort of a woman, and the kind of woman that your Dottie Dimple ought to be, son, isn't a grafter.

She doesn't want a man to spend a lot of money on her, but she does adore the delicate little attentions, the gifts that show that a man is remembering her and thinking of her, and that he has observed her closely enough to know just what she likes and is interested in.

Don't try to keep other men away. Don't go to see a girl and act as if you had a mortgage on her parlor and were about to evict every other man present.

Don't sit up and scowl and look like a sore-headed bear if you can't have her all to yourself. A woman loathes that attitude in her husband, and if she has a grain of sense of independence she simply won't stand for it in a man that she isn't married to yet, thank God!

A woman likes a man that can hold his own with other men, and who isn't afraid to be put in comparison with others. Give the girl a chance, son, and if you are not willing to do that, and to line up at the post with the others, scratch your entry. You'll never win that race.

Be Johnny-on-the-spot. Love is more a matter of habit than anything else. A girl gets used to depending on a man, used to confiding in him, used to his sympathy.

Very likely she didn't intend to fall in love with him, and that he doesn't resemble her ideal in a single particular, but some day she wakes up to the fact that he is necessary to her, and the man sees in her eyes the beacon lights that tell him he has won her.

And the game is worth the candle, son.

Are You a Member of Any Gymnasium?

PROBABLY you aren't because of the expense entailed or because there is no gymnasium in your neighborhood. You lament the fact, for physical exercises are so good for the health and the figure.

Don't spend too much time in lamenting, for the best exercise in the world may still be had by you. It is walking, or, if you like to enjoy it in the open air, dancing.

Dancing is a magnificent exercise; the only thing against it is that it is more suited to the young than the old, and that with it are almost always associated the disadvantages of hot, badly-ventilated rooms and late hours.

Walking is, however, suited to people of all ages, and it is enjoyed in the open air. It is an exercise which brings a larger number of muscles into play than any other, and develops and keeps them in good condition. For that reason, perhaps, the most popular game of golf has so many votaries. The game itself is interesting, and the hours of exercise in the open air are most invigorating and delightful.

Every one knows how to walk properly, and the reason why people walk badly is simply carelessness. To walk well means enjoyment and health. Carry the body erect, with the chest well out and the head back, and let the arms fall naturally to the sides. The pace and the distance should depend on the strength and endurance of the pedestrian, who should walk far enough and fast enough to get the body into a comfortable glow.

To benefit as much as possible from a walk, one should walk for pleasure. During that time, at any rate, one should leave one's worries at home and give himself a time of real recreation, combining with the walk, if possible, the pursuit of some pet hobby, or the execution of an interesting errand.

Old-Fashioned Hat Is Being Revived Again

FOR afternoon wear the Marie Antoinette style of millinery is being revived, and as we are all familiar with th exagerated shapes that prevailed in th heydey of this lovely and unfortunat queen, it can be realized that hats grow i irresponsibility each week, and the present acute angle promises to become still more so.

The little hat of the Princess de Lamballe is a favorite, perched on a pyramid of curls, and fluttering ends of tulle and ribbon, so redolent of that artificially artles period, are reproduced with all picturesqu exactness.

Grasses are used as well as trailin plumes with flower posies, their attractiveness arising chiefly, it must be confessed, from the deft manner of their disposal.

BIG SURPRISE COMING IN THE DOLL HOUSE CONTEST

THE name of the winner of the doll house contest will be announced to-morrow. The judges have selected the winner.

But so many nice letters were received that the Doll House Editor has prepared a surprise. In addition to the first prize letter, fifteen other letters have been selected. EACH OF THE LITTLE GIRLS WHO WROTE THESE LETTERS WILL RECEIVE A BIG BEAUTIFUL DOLL. THIS MAKES SIXTEEN PRIZES INSTEAD OF ONE. Watch for the names of the winners to-morrow.

Now Is the Time to Lay By a Stock of Health for the Winter

By Beatrice Fairfax

THIS is the time to lay in a good stock of health for the coming Winter.

Spend every minute that you can out in the fresh air. If you are busy through the week, try and be out of doors all day long on Sunday. Go into the parks as much as possible.

A long trolley ride in the evening or a trip on a ferryboat will fill your lungs with fresh air.

Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables, but be sure they are fresh, and drink plenty of water.

Any doctor will tell you that you should drink at least three pints of water a day if you want to be healthy.

Get as brown and rosy as you can, so as to start the Winter in good shape.

In the coming September and October days you should try and walk a good deal.

If you start in the Winter in good condition you will be able to avoid many colds. The people who are already run down are the first to succumb to grip and pneumonia.

The working girl cannot afford to neglect her health. If she is miserable and run down it soon shows in the class of work she turns out. And, incidentally, good health means good looks. The delicate, fragile beauty is out of fashion.

The sensible young business man of to-day wants a wholesome, healthy wife, not a pining invalid, who can be nothing but a drawback to him.

It is the fashion to be healthy, and a very sensible fashion it is.

There is no blessing in the world equal to that of health. Without it nothing is of value. The millionaire invalid would give many of his millions to be as healthy as the man who earns a dollar a day.

Perhaps you work in rooms that are improperly ventilated. In that case you must do your utmost to counteract the bad effect by getting all the fresh air you can outside your working hours.

Take as many baths as possible, and never miss a chance to fill your lungs with long, deep breaths of fresh air. Spend your evening out of doors; do anything and everything you can to make yourself strong.

Remember that health is the basis of youth and beauty. The better your health the longer your youth.

It is hard for the working girl to get out of doors as much as she should, but if she is wise she will sacrifice finery for the sake of health, and spend the money on outings that otherwise she might spend on clothes. Pretty clothes don't do her much good if she is puny and unhealthy looking.

Some Good Helps in the Sick Room

KEEP bottles, as far as possible, out of sight.

Never leave medicine, drink or food uncovered in the sick room.

* * *

Have the bed a foot or two from the wall.

* * *

Plenty of ventilation, but no air directly blowing on the patient.

* * *

Everything fresh and clean, with the purest of soap and plenty of warm water.

* * *

To assuage thirst and cure feverishness apple tea is a valuable sick drink. It is made by slicing raw apples into a jug, filling up the jug with boiling water, as in tea making, then sweetening to taste. When cold this apple tea will be found pleasantly tart and refreshing.

[illegible] should never be used in the sick room.

* * *

Nowadays doctors forbid gouty patients to eat any kind of sweet food, but recommend them to eat at least a dozen walnuts a day. There is no doubt that walnuts are most useful in gouty subjects, or in cases of chronic rheumatism. Swelling goes down and pain decreases.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

By Sidney Warwick

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

"WHAT do you mean by this, Jackson?" Haggard demanded sharply of the clerk. "Of course, your story was fantastic and impossible on the face of it. Is this some ill-timed practical joke or some hallucination of yours?"

"I assure you it is true, sir. Mr. Wynter stood at that door, and asked if there were any letters for him, calling me by name. I can't understand it, sir, but that's the truth."

"Did any of the other clerks see this—this alleged visitor?" he said curtly.

"I was alone in the office, sir, and——"

But Haggard did not wait for his reply. He walked back into the large office.

Prize Idiot

"Mr. Jackson has made the remarkable statement that Mr. Wynter, my late partner, has just been seen here. Can any of you corroborate his statement?"

No one spoke.

"I thought not," said Haggard grimly. He turned to Jackson, who was now a mixture of fear and abjectness. "As I cannot suppose you would be so foolish as to attempt a practical joke on your employer, the only explanation feasible is that you were dozing, instead of working, and had a vivid dream."

A little grim smile played about his mouth.

"I do not pay my men to doze in office hours, Jackson——"

"I am very sorry, sir, but——"

"You'll remember that, Jackson, if you wish to remain in my employ," said Haggard curtly, closing the discussion, and he walked back to his room.

Jackson prudently waited till the door was shut, and then said in a voice carefully calculated not to reach his employer:

"Well, he can say what he likes, but it was true for all that."

But by this time the clerks were inclined to think that Jackson had made a prize idiot of himself, and did not attempt to hide their opinion.

Shuttleworth seemed quite anxious to induce him to sign the pledge.

The abrupt announcement had staggered Haggard immeasurably. Even now, as he sat in his room his nerves were quivering from the shock of this strange delusion of Jackson's, for it could only have been a delusion; if Wynter were alive, would his first intimation of the fact have been made in this fashion, after the attack on him by the junior partner?

Self-Pity

The supposition was too fantastic. Robert Wynter was dead, of course; Jackson had been dreaming, or else some one had played a practical joke on Jackson.

But he must go away for a long change and rest, get his nerves in order again; after the strain the last two weeks had put upon him, he started at shadows. He must get away as soon as possible.

When he came back, his old self again, he would try to put all this behind him—out of his mind—this that he had done—and start anew.

If only he could do that—start anew, live a life that had no hidden pages in it to keep him tortured with these fears.

If only he could do that! It was the one dominant thought in his mind.

He was not a man who had deliberately chosen the paths of crime into which his feet had strayed. He told himself that, now, as though the fact mitigated everything.

He would never have committed that forgery that had been the first link in that lengthening chain of evil-doing only that he had been in a corner for money. He had had bad luck in some heavy speculations and to tide over temporary difficulties had forged his partner's name to a note, intending to meet it when it fell due.

Wynter would never have discovered the forgery but for the death of the man to whom he gave the note.

He had been the victim of that one circumstance, Haggard told himself; all that followed had been the result of it. If only that accidental discovery had not been made there would have been no angry scene. Wynter would have sailed, and, if Wynter had sailed then Grieve would have been alive now, for he could not have played his gigantic game of bluff—would not have goaded him (Haggard) into that wild, desperate act in the Arabesque.

A Trump Card

One thing had followed on another inevitably.

If only he could get clear of it all—this that after all, he tried to persuade himself, was more his misfortune than his fault.

For he had not meant to kill Wynter; the blow was struck in the sudden blindness of fury; he felt sure he had never meant to kill Wynter. And so, though the blow had been fatal, he was not Wynter's murderer.

Virtually it was an accident. Should he let an accident stand between him and the purpose he had cherished so long—that of asking the daughter of the man in his thoughts to be his wife?

He loved Rosamund Wynter. In all this man's selfish and unscrupulous nature, it was the one pure and sacred thing.

For her sake, if he could stand clear of all this horror into which he had been caught as in a whirlpool, driven by circumstances, for all the future he would run straight.

He loved Rosamund.

She was so different from those other women with whom he had whiled away many a foolish hour—women of the type of Miss Langford, who had been dining at the restaurant where he and Grieve had gone last night.

Rosamund's girlish purity and sweetness appealed to all that was best in the man's nature.

He felt that life would be a different thing for him could he but win her love and make her his wife—had almost the superstitious feeling of a gambler that she would be his mascot, his luck bringer, would help him to "run straight" in the future.

How tender and gentle he would be to her always! Even more gentle because, though she would never know it, his blow, struck in the heat of passion—that accident, as he insisted on calling it in his thoughts—had killed her father.

Did Rosamund care for him? Philip Haggard did not know; and he was a man who had made many conquests among women.

True, lately, the coming of John Herries on the scene had aroused his jealousy.

But so far as Herries was concerned he had a trump card to play—Delamere's admission that Herries was the husband of the murdered dancer, known to the police as John March, and March was suspected of having killed his wife. That fact once known would put Herries out of the running.

With Rosamund for his wife, he would make a new start, would atone for the past by living "straight" for the future.

Strange stuff that human nature is made of!—that this man so stained with guilt could dream of a life of honor and happiness to be built on the foundation of all the evil he had wrought!

e Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Prize of $2.

Original of Snapshot Called Yesterday Morning Bright and Early.

It didn't take long to identify the snapshot of a woman shopper in Wednesday's BOSTON AMERICAN. It was a splendid likeness of Mrs. Jan McKenzie of No. 54 Fruit street, Roxbury.

The photograph was taken Tuesday about noon near Timothy Smith's. The lucky shopper saw the Camera Man snap her, but had not the remotest idea why he wanted her photo.

When she saw her picture in Wednesday's paper, however, it was all clear to her. At first, she said, she didn't intend to claim the reward. But on second thought she decided she might as well have the prize of $2, since it was to be had for the asking.

The Camera Man gets one of these little pictures every day in the neighborhood of stores patronized by readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Keep your eye on him.

IG NAVAL ONTRACT WON BY HUB FIRM

. H. White Company to Lay All the Linoleum on the Great Battleship Vermont.

The work of covering the floor space a huge modern United States battleship no mean undertaking, and when the con t is secured in competition with the and most capable firms in Boston, New ork, Philadelphia and Washington, the ride which the R. H. White Company of ston feels in being awarded the contract r laying all the linoleum on such a ship as the new and mighty battleship Vermont may well be imagined. The work is to be done in November and December, and when the high-grade work required by e Government and its strict specifica ons are called to mind, this award comes all the more complimentary to this Bos house.

In the case of the Vermont, the amount of money involved in making, cutting and laying the linoleum is about $10,000, there being thousands of square yards of floor space to be covered on a ship of her great ize. Every square foot of the main deck, he gun deck, including the admiral's and aptain's quarters, the berth deck, the quar rs of all the petty officers and all of the munition passages and barbettes must e covered with the heavy linoleum, which s cemented to the steel flooring of which ese decks and passages are made.

Linoleum is the preference of the mod n war experts. It resists wear longer an anything else and resists the impact powder and shell better. It is far bet than wood, for when struck by shot or ell there are no flying splinters. It is aintained that linoleum outlasts even the od ship itself.

hat the R. H. White Company has se ured other notable contracts from the Gov rnment. It laid the linoleum on the bat leships Rhode Island and New Jersey, o well was this work done and so satis actory has it proved that there is no uestion but that the R. H. White Comany will satisfy the rigid requirements of ncle Sam in the work to be done on his est sea fighter, the huge Vermont.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Big Piano Bargains

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

New and Second Hand. Don't get any mistaken idea that only second hand Pianos can be had at these sales. As a matter of fact we sometimes sell the entire stock of new Pianos of some small dealer who through force of circumstances was obliged to "shut up shop," store his stock and finally let it go. We have in the course of a year hundreds of new Pianos that in the "course of events" come up to the salesrooms to be sold and always at a sacrifice.

Anti-Trust Piano Sale

$5 DOWN, $1 PER WEEK.

We would advise you to make up your mind to buy your Piano this coming week and as soon as circumstances will allow you. There were not enough Pianos in the lot to last through Saturday, August 25, and we do not take any from the accounts until Mondays. People who get in and buy Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays get tremendous bargains. Every Piano is tuned by our expert and is at concert pitch before coming into our salesroom. We let no Piano go out before being assured of its excellent condition.

People familiar with New York, Chicago and Philadelphia makers of fine Pianos can appreciate the fine values of this week's sale when we say that the best Pianos of the following makers, new and slightly used, will go for a great deal less than the original cost of manufacture: Bailey Piano Co., Phila.; Crown Co., Chicago; Estey, New York; Jacob Doll, New York; Milton, New York; Singer, Chicago; Krakauer Bros., New York; Bradbury Piano Co., New York, and many others. Don't forget these makes—you people who have traveled.

Liberal terms to responsible parties. Get in early and select best bargains. Pianos shipped free to all parts of the United States.

Write to-day for full bargain list. We have dozens of fine Pianos not in the above list, left over from special sales, etc. Some Pianos for beach or country houses almost given away.

Free delivery anywhere in unmarked wagons; goods guaranteed as represented or money refunded; 1,000 rooms to let for storage, building so large; entrance will be where you see the red flag; sale positive all this week; open Sat. eve. till 9 p. m. ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS, 725 Shawmut av., corner Williams st., Roxbury.

Take any Shawmut av. car or the Elevated to Northampton st. and change for car going up Washington to Williams st.

BIG BOOMING at Blake's; our annual clearance sale continues the balance of the month; and we have several specially fine bargains in H. F. The White Man and the Black Man Will Fight

Interesting. DEMOCRATIC AND BRUTAL Race Contest

A young man named Gans—of the African race—has agreed to fight another young man named Nelson—of the white race, a Dane.

These young men, representing at their weight the highest development of the fighting power in this country, WHICH MEANS IN THE WORLD, PROBABLY, will fight for thirty thousand dollars and a great deal of "glory."

The young man who wins the fight will earn, in ten or fifty or a hundred minutes, as much as a Congressman of the United States can earn in six years; AS MUCH AS THE ORDINARY WORKINGMAN CAN EARN IN THIRTY THOUSAND DAYS, WHICH IS ABOUT ONE HUNDRED YEARS.

How eagerly the American people, indifferent to many important events, follow the announcements concerning this fight!

When the fight actually begins all of our office boys and most of our old and wise men will be watching the ticker, listening for opinions, while the great question of supremacy between the white and the black man is settled with the fists.

So great is the interest, so great has been the migration to Goldfield in Nevada, where the fight is to be fought, that the managers have found profit in building an enormous arena expressly for this event.

It wouldn't be possible to do this in honor of a gathering of all the great scientists in the world. Or, if it were done, the scientists would have to pay the bill. The public would not have sufficient interest to pay it.

Naturally the intense excitement with which this coming fight of fists is awaited reflects principally the brutal interest of human beings in physical combat.

But for the man who does not care much whether the white man or [illegible] black man can hit harder, there is interest in this competition be[illegible]wo human beings trained to the finest point.

[illegible]ings count in fisticuffs as in all other physical and intellect[illegible]gs.

[illegible]ore important is the mind that directs the muscles. Sec[illegible]trength and the adaptability of those muscles to the [illegible]ve in hand.

[illegible]ng to see these two men, representing the African [illegible] white race of old Denmark, pitted against each other. [illegible] Dane, represents the yellow-haired, broad-shouldered [illegible] sailed up the Seine to sack Paris in the centuries past; [illegible] Vikings that mixed up the breeds of England, that [illegible] wherever there was a landing place for a good boat and [illegible]

[illegible]hat takes Nelson into the ring to fight against the young [illegible] blood that brought the first European men to this con[illegible]ghting, adventurous blood of the North.

[illegible] in Gans, the negro, the African champion, there is even a more mysterious interest.

This young man is the under dog in the fight. The triumphant and egotistical white race is against him. Sympathy is against him.

Yet, thus far, he has proved himself, in this country of eighty millions of human beings, absolutely the best fighter. That is an interesting thought for those who believe they are certain of the inferiority of the African race.

In the blood of this young negro are continued the energy and the force that for hundreds of centuries have fought against the killing sun of Africa. It is the force that has opposed and withstood the wild beasts, the diseases of a country where the white man dies. The blood of that young man is the same blood that you see in the face of the Egyptian sphynx with its thick lips. It is the blood of the men that first studied the stars, the blood of those from whom we get the beginning of all our religious ideas. We think the African race moves slowly. Let us remember the load it has had to carry.

Interesting indeed is this strange, out-of-date fist competition between these two human fighting machines. One—the black man—is the older. That means that in our civilization he has had more money to spend, more chances to injure the health and the power that nature gave him. That is AGAINST him.

On the other hand, there is the fact that the African is younger among the races than the whiter of his kind. In his physical being there is quicker action, quicker connection between the brain and the fighting muscles. And that is in his FAVOR. In the Dane there is intensified fighting instinct, a courage that is absolutely without limit. That same courage is in both of the men. It is a matter of course that each one will fight until it is physically impossible for him to lift his hand against the other. What a pity that such physical courage cannot be more quickly transformed into the MORAL courage that the country needs!

White men and black men alike in this country watch the fight with the intense interest that proves how close we still are to the animal kingdom, how highly we value that fighting power which should long ago have become unthought of and useless among us.

The white men stick together against the black, as the gray wolves stick together against wolves of another kind. It is to be hoped if the black man wins that his victory will put into the minds of white men a kindlier feeling, a greater respect for the black. Since we all admire fighting so much, let us at least be consistent in giving credit to another race when it proves possession of the quality that we envy.

If the white man wins there will be the usual jubilation, the usual statement that a white man is better than a black—in spite of the fact that Gans as a black man has beaten all the good white men in the country, has held his own as champion longer than is usual even with the best of white men.

Should any of our friends suggest that the duty of a newspaper written by white men, largely for white men, is to take the white man's side, we can only say that it would give us extreme pleasure to see the African in this fight add to the respect that people should have for the courage that his race has shown.

The white man in any case will not hang his head—he has too much egotism for that.

If he wins he will proclaim his superiority.

If he loses, he will remark that, while it was true that a black man beat a white man, it is also true THAT A GORILLA COULD HAVE BEATEN EITHER OF THEM.

It is very hard to overcome vanity. And, therefore, when the white man and the black man fight, it is safe to say that the white man will come out VAIN, whatever else may happen.

1. THE OLD SALT—Ahoy, messmate! Shiver my timbers, but I believe you look pert enough to cotton on to a good thing when you see it. Here I have a thousand cigars which cost fifty dollars a hundred to make in Cuba.

2. THE OLD SALT—Yes, just try one. If you ever smoked one like that before I'll forswear my grog. Never mind whether I smuggled them in or not. I'll let you have the thousand for a hundred dollars.

MR. E. Z.—My, my, I never smoked a better cigar in all my life. I'll take the lot. Here is your hundred, my saline friend.

3. MRS. MARK—For goodness sake, E. Z., what does this mean? Are you going into the cigar business?

MR. E. Z.—No; Mrs. Fresh. But when I see a chance to save four hundred dollars I save it.

4. MRS. MARK—Oh, you putty-headed, mush-brained idiot! Just as I thought. Fifty fairly good cigars, and the balance of the boxes filled with coal ashes. To the chamber of horrors for yours, that's what.

She Notes Kindness to Animals and the Success of the City-Owned Street Car Lines in Holland

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE sympathy and affection I feel for dumb animals usually casts a shadow over my pleasure when traveling.

Here in Holland blessed relief has been accorded me from this anxiety over the miseries of my dumb kin, especially the horse and cat.

I have not seen one wretched, hungry-looking cat in Holland, and I have seen scores of the feline race on the street and in ships, shops and homes, all wearing the sleek, well-fed look of valued domestic pets.

Never once has a cat shrunk away from the hand I always extend to any puss. Whenever and wherever seen never once has this animal looked at me with suspicion, as if accustomed to blows and kicks, as so frequently occurs in my own land.

There may be cases of deserted and ill-treated cats in Holland, but three of the largest cities and several villages and country hamlets have not shown me one.

Nor have I seen one miserable or hungry-looking horse, or one abusive driver. I have not seen a horse beaten.

This seems a remarkable statement to make after journeying about Holland extensively, especially for one who is oversensitive regarding animals.

But while a few horses have seemed to be somewhat lame and suffering from tender feet, in every case the driver has shown consideration and driven them mercifully over the hard stone pavements. The horses here are noticeably large and strong in build, and all have the prevailing expression of comfort and content which characterizes the human race in the Netherlands. On hot days bonnets are seen on the majority of work horses.

Where Dogs Labor

THE dog alone is the animal which excites my sympathy here.

The old similes, "Working like a dog," and "As tired as a dog," must have originated in Holland and adjacent countries, where the poor canine creature is made a beast of burden.

I do not know why we should feel that the dog is deserving a life of ease and leisure any more than the horse or ox, in case his work is suited to his smaller stature, but it is impossible for me to see a dog harnessed to a cart and driven about the streets on milk wagons and vegetable and other carts without a certain feeling of resentment.

I have not, however, found one dog who seemed to want my sympathy. Whenever I have spoken to them they have been most emphatic in their replies. The Dutch language is difficult for me to understand, but the dog language the world over is a universal tongue, and I have known the Holland dog was telling me to mind my own business and move on in each instance.

The work dog is always well fed, as is everything and everybody in Holland, but he is not at all amiable. The people are; they take work as a matter of course, and seem to like it, but I think the dog objects.

The land is overrun with dogs of all kinds. Such a barking by day and night I have never before heard in any land.

There are leisure dogs by the hundred, who live for the fun of living alone, as do our house and barn pe in America, and the old, old strife and dispute between leisure and labor seems to confine itself here to the dog race.

Sometimes the idle dog out for amusement in crossing a street encounters a cart with a working dog, harnessed and muzzled, and passes an uncomplimentary remark, which leads to loud quarrels; sometimes the work-dog begins the dispute by calling the leisure animal an idle loafer, living off other dogs' labor, but however it begins, it is to be heard almost every hour in the streets of the villages and towns of Holland.

Good Trolley Rules

I HAVE never seen a dog struck a blow, and their masters seem fond of them. I cannot find any one who knows of the existence of a protective society for animals in this country.

The American Consul at Amsterdam says he has never heard of one; the Secretary of the American Legation at Rotterdam said the same. And, so far as I have observed, there seems [illegible] be no need of one.

The trolley system of Holland [illegible] in every place we have visited, is [illegible] improvement in many respects [illegible] our American system.

At Scaveningen, the large seash resort, where thousands of people coming and going daily, the crowds obliged to get in line, as we do America in obtaining access to a office of a theatre.

Because we failed to understand rule, or the language spoken by officials, and got in a car ahead of line formed, we saw the first display temper and the only one we have countered in this phlegmatic land; guard waved his baton wi sputtered Dutch loudly, and gave u understand we must get out.

After trying twenty people w English and French for an expl tion, and finding no one who speak a word of any language German or Dutch, we finally g the situation by observation a proved it highly, despite our rary annoyance.

City Ownership

ONLY as many passengers can enter a car as the seats accommodate, and only eight can stand on the platform.

Think of the relief to mind and b of tourists and citizens and the sa of tempers and clothes!

Then, the car lines are indicated numbers placed above the trolley li over the car, in large figures, visi half a block away to a short vision.

The No. 11 line, passing the co of our hotel, is the line which t us to the shopping district; we no trouble in making further inqui and mistakes are impossible after th fact is once ascertained. It is adm able, and ought to be adopted America.

At night the number is illuminate and clearly distinguishable.

Municipal ownership prevails in Amsterdam, and, from all inquiries, is most emphatic success.

The Vice Consul (a Dutchman a native of Amsterdam) is especi enthusiastic over the change from th private corporation of six years ag to city ownership. He says it is every way a blessing to the public.

Household Notes

By Wex Jones

ONE of the most useful things to have about the house is a Standard Oil magnate. Run through a wringer daily, he will yield enough money to keep the automobile in repair and to buy chicken sandwiches for the cat. Of course, it is advisable to give the magnate a rebate on all sums extracted from him. This will keep him in good temper, and with care he will live to a good old age.

The society butterfly pays much attention to the etiquette of calls, but for the ordinary person the only rule that must be remembered is this: Never call any one unless ready to back up your remarks.

In opening canned stuff be careful not to saw off the top ot your finger. You may not need it, but it is a pity to spoil the set.

* * *

No home should be without books. At least the "hundred best" should be tastefully arranged on the washtubs or in cellar. Among the hundred best bo are to be found most of the Mets.

In washing dishes it is inadvisable break any but the dirtiest. This sa time and money, for it takes a long ti to gather up the pieces of dishes flu against the ceiling in a fit of pique.

"Oh, no," I said, "my hair's not dead. Kind sir, it's only dyed."

"That vension was dear," she said. "And not so very nice."

"'Twas bound to be," I said; "you see, It's deer at any price."
